RUSSIA DEMANDS PARLEY IN NEW REPLY TO BRITAIN

London, May 23. (AP).—Soviet Russia's second reply to the British ultimatum accepts the majority of the British demands and suggests the holding of a conference to consider points in dispute. The Soviet expresses readiness to conclude forthwith an agreement granting British citizens the right to fish outside the three-mile limit off the Russian coasts, pending settlement by an international convention of the dispute over the extent of territorial waters.

The note was handed to Lord Curzon, British Foreign Minister, today by Leonid Krassin, special Soviet envoy.

2 HAVERHILL GIRLS VICTIMS OF "JACK-THE-HUGGER"

Haverhill, May 23.—Two Haverhill girls were the victims of a Jack-the-Hugger within a few minutes of each other.

Miss Louise Decoteau, twenty-two years old, of Wheeler avenue, was seized near Broadway and North Broadway by a well-dressed young man, who had been following her. Her screams scared him away.

Miss Decoteau's father and brother searched the vicinity a few moments afterward, but could find no trace of the assailant.

Police were unable to learn the name of the other victim. In this case the assailant beat a hasty retreat when the girl slapped his face.

GREEK FLEET NEAR STRAITS; TURKS PROTEST TO BRITAIN

Constantinople, May 23 (AP).—A Greek fleet is cruising about the entrance to the Dardanelles and the Turkish government has formally protested to the British.

Paris, May 23 (AP).—The French Foreign Office today confirmed reports that the allied governments were occupied to prevent a new outbreak of hostilities between Greece and Turkey.

The French and British ministers at Athens have pointed out how inopportune would be the issuance of anything approaching an ultimatum while the Lausanne conference was endeavoring to establish peace and how dangerous for Greece would be an offensive action on her part.

Ohio Men Claim They Have Bought Team; Frazee Sets Price

Columbus, O., May 23.—E. M. Schoenborn of this city, former president of the Columbus club of the American Association, announced here today upon his arrival from Chicago that he and other Columbus men had reached an agreement to purchase the Boston American League baseball club and that they expected to take possession at the close of th prsent season.

Chicago, May 23.—"It is my understanding that the sale will be made," said Ban Johnson, president of the American League, today in commenting on the reported sale of the Boston Red Sox to a group of Ohio men.

Harry H. Frazee said negotiations were pending for the sale of the club, that he had given the prospective purchasers his price, but that the deal had not been closed.

"I set a price on the club some time ago, President Frazee said, "but the proposition is still in the air If I get my price, I'll sell."

E. M. Schoenborn, former president, Palmer K. Winslow and Dr. Robert B. Drury, former stockholders of the Columbus, Ohio, club, are the men reported to have bought the Red Sox for delivery next October.

The Keating girl, who is known also as Florence Donovan and Florence Reed, was arrested on a charge of stealing clothing and other articles from the North Reading Sanitarium, where she had been employed as an attendant.

When she was arraigned today she pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for one year, with an order to pass the period of probation in the Boston Institution.

Fall River, May 23.—Samuel Plesit, who was to have married Miss Lena Popkin next September, was found hanging from the hinges of a door in the Edwards building today.

Medical Examiner William H. Blanchette gave a verdict of suicide.

Employes of the Fall River Credit Agency, of which Plesit was manager, made the discovery when they opened a closet.

Plesit had been in poor health, but his associates informed the medical examiner they did not believe his act due to illness.

Plesit came here a year ago from New York. He was thirty-five.

W. U. MESSENGER BOY KILLED BY TOY PISTOL POISON

John Simoneau, sixteen years old, Western Union messenger, of No. 683½ East Fifth street, South Boston, is dead—victim of a $1 pistol.

John, dreamed of frontier days and longed for a gun. A magazine advertisement offered pistols at $1 each to shoot blank cartridges.

John got one and went to the rear of the Western Union office on Fish Pier, South Boston, to try it out.

The blank failed to explode. John broke open the chamber. The cartridge went off. It burned his hands. Blood poison set it. He died at Carney Hospital, South Boston.

A broken automobile headlight cost two Fall River youths their liberty today. Police officers, standing on Washington street, Roxbury, were attracted by the lack of a light.

When they questioned the occupants of the car they found a loaded revolver, slungshot and bunch of keys. The car had been stolen from Samuel Assben of Waite street, Fall River.

Judge Hayden sentenced Edward Bibby, twenty-one, to Concord Reformatory. His companion, Robert Robertson, twenty-four, was given two years in the House of Correction. They appealed and were held in $5,000 bail.

of the Sox failed to gain any information.

The Cleveland announcement was made by Palmer K. Winslow and Dr. Robert B. Drury, who claimed they had perfected the sale in Chicago.

The third member of the combine, they asserted, was E. M. Schoenborn. All three were interested in the Columbus American Association team and are widely known in middle Western baseball circles.

Mr. Winslow, in telling of the purchase, refused to state what price had been paid. It was intimated that this was in excess of $1,000,000.

The trio of Columbus men have been in Chicago for several days in connection with the purchase of the Boston club. Palmer Winslow is a glass manufacturer. Dr. Drury is a well known Columbus surgeon and Mr. Schoenborn was the first secretary and later was president of the Columbus Association club. He was succeeded as president of the local club by Joe Tinker. Mr. Schoenborn now is the principal owner of the Columbus baseball park.

Cleveland, O., May 23.—Indications are that Robert J. Quinn, business manager of the St. Louis Browns will be the head of the Boston Red Sox at the close of the current season. Quinn is a close associate of Ed. M. Schoenborn, Palmer Winslow and Dr. Robert B. Drury of Columbus, new owners of the Boston American League Club.

These men are all well to do business and professional men and their connection with baseball has been limited to ownership of the Columbus Club in the American Association years ago.

The deal for the sale of the Red Sox was closed in Chicago Tuesday but the new owners will not take possession until next October. Quinn, a practical baseball man, wanted to quit the Browns last Fall but owner Phil Ball prevailed on him to remain another season. Quinn is very favorably known in Boston.

2 Fined $1,500 for Enticing Negro Labor from South

Greensboro, N. C., May 23.—The continued exodus of negro workers to the North has resulted in the tightening of State law enforcement covering contract labor in several Southern States.

Charles Hampton, a negro, was fined $500 here for "secretly enticing negro laborers" to leave Greensboro for Harrisburg, Pa.

Edward Karabinus was arrested at Petersburg, Va., while in charge of twenty-five negroes on the way to a New Jersey cement plant. He was fined $1,000.

COP'S SLAYER, CAPTURED, GETS AWAY AGAIN

Madison, Wis., May 23—Captured in a restaurant here, James L. Whitfield, sought as the slayer of Patrolman Dennis Griffin at Cleveland, formerly of Springfield, Mass., broke away from two policemen, and escaped under a shower of bullets.

Madison was alive with searching bands today, and hundreds of students of the University of Wisconsin aided in the chase by automobile and on foot. A general a'arm was broadcast throughout the State.

When Whitfield was a woman, who gave her name as Marie Price, twenty-four years old. She said she had traveled with him since his flight from Cleveland. She was locked up for questioning.

Whitfield and the woman entered a restaurant. Serving them, Albert Felly, the owner of the establishment, recognized the men from newspaper pictures. He stole out to a nearby telephone and notified the police.

Surprised by two patrolmen and a detective, Whitfield submitted quietly. He was led across the street towards a patrol wagon.

Wrenching free from the grip of the patrolmen, Whitfield dashed behind a moving street car and sped down a side street and an alley while pursuing officers fired at him. A bystander said he stumbled as though wounded.

The theft of an automobile in the vicinity caused police to work on the belief that he may have stolen the car and escaped in it.

52 Barnard Girls Smoke, 72 Go on Bat, 36 Engaged

New York, May 23.—Seventy-two junior girl students at Barnard College "feased up today that they've gone out on "bats," but it developed not one of 'em knows what a "bat" is.

Replying to a questionnaire, fifty-two admitted smoking and 65 didn't, though 10 others later once had the habit. Fifty-eight wear bobbed hair, 63 don't and 6 others are in the half-and-half growing-out stage.

Thirty wear galoshes open and 30 closed; 2 wear knickers to college and 100 don't; 36 have been engaged and 52 not yet.

WORKERS CHARGE COERCION BY OWNERS

Washington, May 23.—Miners of non-union fields in Northeastern Kentucky have sent petitions to the United States Coal Commission asking that body to help them "be free American wage workers." The petition signers, said to be nine employes in and around Hazard, Ky., declare they are "coerced through personal agents of the operators to sign a contract that we will not join the union." Failing to do so, the petition said, the miners are "forced out of their jobs and forced out of the company's houses."

BENEFITED AT EXPENSE OF HIS WARD

Providence, May 23.—Charles F. Hidden of this city, committee in charge of the property of Mrs. Henrietta Gardner Catapani, was scored by Justice Vernon M. Davis in a decision handed down in Supreme Court.

"The principal issue," the judge wrote, "is whether the committee enriched himself at the expense of his ward. After a consideration of the evidence I am convinced he did.

"While there is no evidence of personal dishonesty against the committee, it is apparent that at a critical time, when his personal interests conflicted with that of his ward, he sought his own interest to the latter's disadvantage and loss."

Both Mr. Hidden and Mrs. Catapani were beneficiaries of their uncle, Thomas Hidden of New York. Long litigation followed, and in all twenty-one attorneys figured.

Mrs. Catapani was adjudged incompetent some time ago, and a year ago when her affairs came before Judge Davis, her estate was appraised at $129,000. This latest action was an accounting of the committee.

LYNN GIRL RAFFLES PUT ON PROBATION

Antoinette de Maso, sixteen, of Swampscott, found guilty of stealing $62.50 and a diamond brooch from Miss Marian McGuire, a Lynn school teacher, was given one year's probation by Judge Reeves today and ordered to make restitution of $75 for the brooch. The money was recovered.

WIFE SEES LAWYER SLAIN BY LIQUOR-CRAZED NEGRO

Washington, May 23. (I. N. S.)—Sermad A. Wolf, New York lawyer who has been residing here six months, was killed today in front of his home by a drink-crazed negro. Wolf was returning from a theatre with his wife and two friends when the negro, lurching along, bumped into Mrs. Wolf. The men remonstrated. Without warning, the negro pulled a gun and opened fire. When captured he gave the name of Charles Proctor.

50 SACKS OF MAIL BURNED ON TRAIN FROM BOSTON

Fifty sacks of parcel post packages from Boston were burned in a mail coach of the Boston & Albany at Worcester today. Other pouches were damaged.

It is believed the fire started in Boston and smouldered all the way to Worcester.

TAILOR SUES BACK BAY WOMAN

An action to recover $225 for suits of clothes that Miss M. Mae Scruggs of No. 60 Fenway is alleged to have ordered for a "gentleman friend," was heard by Judge Braley today in Municipal Court.

W. Jackson, West street tailor, testified Miss Scruggs last September selected samples for the suits and later introduced C. H. Pierce, who towered six feet two inches as her "friend" for whom the suits were to be made and who was going to California.

Jackson said Miss Scruggs sent him to deliver the suits at her apartment, saying she would pay the first of the following month.

"I told her it was unusual as we did not have an account with the firm, but she told me she had charge accounts at various Boston stores," said witness. "I found her statement correct, so sent the suits. I also sent a bill, but have not been paid. I understand Mr. Pierce is still in California."

WOMAN KILLS EX-LAWMAKER

Phoenix, Ariz., May 23.—W. F. Remington, prominent Phoenix automobile salesman, former United States Army captain and member of an Arizona Legislature in 1921 and 1922, was shot to death by Mrs. Leah Crandall, a milliner, who then shot herself through the left lung. Physicians said she might recover. According to the police, she confessed the shooting.

Remington was slain in a room occupied by Mrs. Crandall in a rooming house in which they both resided. His wife is visiting in Livermore, Cal.

Mrs. Crandall, who is about thirty years of age, came to Phoenix seven months ago and has been employed as a milliner. She and Remington had been seen together several times recently, police said they were told. Remington was shot twice through the abdomen and once through the chest.

The Spinster's Story. Name the Seventh. They That Watch. Boomerang Strike, Maybe.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

MISS EMILY HOWLAND BOURNE, of New England, died, aged eighty-six, leaving a million. Those that did not get the money seek to prove her crazy. To prove her sound-minded, one of her executors repeats the last story the aged lady told him.

Three appeared at Heaven's gate. Saint Peter admitted the first, who said, "I am George Washington, father of my country." The second, Abraham Lincoln, answered, "I am the savior of my country." The third, Theodore Roosevelt, answered Saint Peter, "None of your business. Where is God?"

Do you think that old lady was crazy?

WHAT ARE THE ten books that you would take on a desert island?

What ten sorts of human beings would you take to that island?

Which are the 1,000 greatest men in earth's history?

You have heard those questions.

NOW AN EDITOR ASKS: Which are the seven greatest Americans?

Six answer for themselves, automatically. They are Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Lincoln, Fulton, Edison. You must accept those six if you admit that the greatest Americans are those that the greatest number of ordinary Americans would name.

THAT LEAVES ONLY one name to complete the seven. Among the 100 millions of us there may be one that in future history will outshine the six (but it's not likely). Which would you select as the seventh? If you sought the man most useful to his country in a material way, you would have to name Henry Ford.

More important might be the man that has done most to make Americans think. Which is he?

COLONEL RUPPERT and Colonel Huston bought the Yankee baseball club for $480,000. Now Ruppert buys Huston's half for $1,500,000. Baseball is profitable for those that own good clubs. It is less profitable for crowds that contribute the money. To find your pleasure in watching others do something that you would like to do is not getting anywhere.

DEMOSTHENES on the seashore, talking against the waves to improve his voice or talking with pebbles in his mouth to cure his stammering, was improving himself. That is better than watching Babe Ruth, and only improving somebody else's gate receipts.

TWO THOUSAND bricklayers on strike tie up $200,000,000 worth of buildings. That means tying up thousands of men; also making idle those that would have supplied materials for building. Also, and most important for the workmen, frightening those that lend money for building.

THE STRIKING BRICKLAYERS, presumably, know what they want and what they ought to have. If they can force a two years' contract at peak prices, that is wisdom, perhaps. The trouble is that benefits of the future are uncertain. Jobs of the present, at highest wages ever known, are certain.

Men that build, borrow money for building. Men that strike, under present conditions, frighten men that lend. Stop money lending and you stop building. Stop building and a two-year contract won't create jobs. Worse times will come quickly enough, of their own accord. They always do. Don't force them, ahead of time.

MUSSOLINI BEGINS to see the other side of the medal; 40,000 Neapolitans abandon him. A fight is organized against him.

The 20th century, very Rococo Rienzi who lately spoke of liberty as a "decaying corpse," quite out of date, may yet be surprised by that corpse's activity. Italian history makes it improbable that any substitute will be accepted for the liberty of Garibaldi, Mazzini and Cavour.

GUNNING IS CALLED 'MAIL VALENTINO'

Forced to leave husband in Wisconsin and support herself, Mrs. Gunning is investigating reports that he courted a Watertown, N. Y., telephone operator and planned to marry her.

MRS. GRACE E. GUNNING

Mrs. Leeman Thompson of Pierrepont Manor, New York, declared John J. Gunning, Jr., was "a special delivery Valentino" in his courtship of her daughter, Eva Ackerman. Besides many special delivery letters, he often called the girl on the long-distance phone. Mrs. Thompson gave out the following sample of Gunning's letters:

My Dear Mrs. Thompson:

I believe Eve is sending you some news today, and I only wish we could bring it to you ourselves. Eve and I became acquainted about six months ago and have come to realize we love each other dearly and plan to marry in a short time. Will you give me your permission to marry her?

I will always love her and will be so good to her that I know we can be very happy together. You know that I think she is just wonderful and know you will give me your consent to have her always with me.

When you write Eve would you inclose a note for me? I do hope I may have the pleasure of meeting you soon, when I can tell you all about our plans, and am anxiously waiting your answer. With best wishes, I am just JACK GUNNING.

Mrs. Thompson also gave out this letter, written her by her daughter:

Mother—I have met a fellow I have learned to like very much and I guess he likes me as much as I like him and we are going to be married very soon.

Mamma, I think the world and all of him and he is wonderful to me. He seems to be so much different than the general run of fellows nowadays. I know you will like him when you know him, and I hope that won't be very long. He is writing a note to you and perhaps you can judge something by that what kind of a fellow he is. I can never write and tell you how much he means to me and how happy I know we can be.

He has a very good job and I know he can give me a good home. I am absolutely content and happy when with him and feel so though I really had found a real and only man that was meant for me. I just know you will like him for himself, not because he is the man I am going to marry, but he is so nice and pleasant and good.

He comes from a very nice family. His home is in Boston. Although he has a very good education I could tell you lots more if I could talk to you, as writing seems a very poor way to tell you. I sincerely hope you approve, for it will make me happy to know I am starting out with your consent. Please, for my sake, write a nice note and send it to me so I can give him something to show how proud I am.

I hope with all my heart you approve, Mamma, for I love him.

Answer soon. Love to all.—Eve

Broker's Mate Declares She Will Sue if Love Triangle Stories Are True

By BERT FORD.

Difference in religion and alleged lack of interest in his home after he abandoned the brokerage business to become a traveling auto tire salesman, are said to have forced Mrs. Grace E. Gunning of No. 128 School street, Watertown, to leave her husband, John J. Gunning, Jr., so-called "Mail Valentino," now of Madison, Wis.

Reports from Wisconsin and New York State of Gunning's effusive love letters penned daily and sent special delivery while on his business trips to Miss Eve Ackerman, telephone operator of Watertown, N. Y., whom Gunning is alleged to have tried to lead to the altar, have started investigation by Mrs. Gunning's counsel of Gunning's gay life as a drummer.

Mrs. Gunning in an exclusive interview to the Boston American today said if she found that reports that Jack courted Miss Ackerman and furnished a flat for her in Madison were true, she would sue at once for divorce for non-support.

FORCED TO LEAVE.

Mrs. Gunning, who is twenty-five, brunette and pretty, said she was forced to leave Gunning—alleged author of twelve-page love letters to another woman—in Madison, Wis., December 1, 1921, return to her parents here and go to work to support herself and daughter, Grace, aged 2½ years.

She said her mother had taken steps in December for custody of the child when Judge Lawton in Middlesex Probate Court appointed her guardian of little Grace.

CONSULTS LAWYER

"The first notice I had that Jack Gunning had proposed to another girl and arranged to marry her," declared Mrs. Gunning, "was last Friday. I was shocked. I consulted Attorney Daniel Owen, at No. 84 State street, and, asked him to investigate.

"Further action on my part will depend entirely on my counsel's report to me. He is now making inquiries. According to what I have been told and read in the papers, the Ackerman girl's mother is said to have made public letters in which my husband professed love for the girl and had even gone to the extreme of furnishing a flat in Madison, Wis., where he is still in business and is reported to have arranged with an Episcopal minister to perform the ceremony.

GUNNING DENIES.

"I received a telegram from Mr. Gunning from Madison, under date of May 29. It reads: 'Reports from here are absolutely without foundation. Do not know where it started. Jack.'

"But how about those letters written to Miss Ackerman's mother and other developments?

"I am living at No. 128 School street, Watertown, next door to my parents. I am employed as confidential secretary by a manufacturing firm. I was forced to leave my husband and go to work to support myself and baby. That was why I left Madison just before Christmas two years ago and returned to my parents.

"I have received a few letters from Mr. Gunning since we separated. My maiden name was Grace E. Johnson. We were introduced by friends in Dorchester. I knew him about six years before we were married.

Sister-in-Law Pleaded Self-Defence in Lowell Tragedy

Lowell, May 23.—Dr. John W. Grady, sixty-one years old, slashed with a razor by Mrs. Clara Grady, his sister-in-law, Sunday night, died today at St. John's Hospital.

Mrs. Grady, a deaf mute forty-six years old, told the police she used the razor in self defense when attacked by the doctor. Her story was accepted and she was released from custody.

Dr. Grady, who had been stopping at his brother's home, said he was awakened to find his sister-in-law bending over him with a razor in her hand. He said he was slashed about the throat and face during a struggle to disarm the woman.

Her twelve-year-olds son, Harold, who went to Mrs. Grady's assistance, was also cut.

Dr. Grady in years past was known as the proprietor of patent remedies.

BROKEN HYDRANT FLOODS DOCK SQ.

Thousands of gallons of water flooded streets in the Dock square district today when a hydrant before Nos. 174 and 176 Washington street was crashed over by a motor truck.

A geyser-like stream shot fifteen feet in air, tearing a hole more than fifteen feet long and six feet wide in the sidewalk and undermining the pavement.

A score of cellars were flooded, causing heavy damage. Street car traffic was delayed.

The water rushed down Union and North Market streets, turning Dock square into an island.

POPE CREATES TWO MORE CARDINALS

Rome, May 23 (A. P.).—Two new cardinals were created by Pope Pius at a secret consistory at the Vatican today. They are Monsignor Luigi Sincero, assessor of the Consistorial Congregation, and Monsignor Giovanni Battista Nasalli-Rocca, archbishop of Bologna.

Pope Pius delivered an allocution, in which he deplored the struggles in Ireland, the situation in the Ruhr and events in Russia. He said he would continue to do everything possible to alleviate the sufferings of the world.

The Pontiff in addition to creating the cardinals precognized a number of archbishops and bishops, most of whom had already been appointed by brief.

The Pontiff after referring to the situation in the Near East, passed to the discord he still found affecting groups in England and Ireland.

"Our paternal eyes," said His Holiness, "see in the crowd of combatants some among the best of our children, beloved for various reasons by this Holy Apostolic See."

The explosion is believed due to some foreign substance in the coal. Mrs. McCleave is the mother of five children.

Lord Robert Cecil had a long interview with the Prime Minister this morning.

STRATON IN ATTACK ON FAUNCE

Atlantic City, N. J., May 23.—Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Church, New York City, caused the session of the Northern Baptist Convention to be thrown into an uproar today when he objected to the presence of President W. H. P. Faunce, of Brown University.

Dr. Straton, a strict fundamentalist, protested against the presence of Dr. Faunce on the ground that Brown University was too liberal in its views.

A roar of disapproval and hisses drowned Dr. Straton's protest as Dr. Faunce rose to speak. The industrial life of today was defined as the foe of the home, of the church and a caricature of the Christian order of society by Dr. Faunce.

W. H. P. Faunce

DEVASTATED SOULS.

"In the industrial life around us pagan principles too often prevail," he said. "When the industrial world is divided into two parties, one determined to give little labor for much money and the other determined to give little money for much labor, our industrial life is simply a continuous silent warfare."

Dr. Faunce declared the most vital of all tasks today is to make "Thy Kingdom Come" in our international relations. He questioned whether people of today believed in Christian principles or whether they believed might was right.

Dr. Faunce stated that the chief havoc wrought by the war was the poisoning of the minds of those who still live and that the real devastated regions are in the souls of men.

"The great trouble is that the question of our duty to the world has been mired deep in party politics, and has never been before us on its merits," declard Dr. Faunce. "We want not peace alone, but international co-operation in the great task of helping the world."

STORM OF HISSES.

Dr. Straton opposed delivery of Dr. Faunce's address on the ground that Brown did not require a teacher to sign his beliefs regarding a Baptist creed, but permitted individual interpretation.

Copies of Dr. Faunce's prepared speech had been distributed among the delegates before the session began. Hardly Pardee Haven E. Thayer of Indianapolis, chairman, turned toward Dr. Faunce to introduce him, when Dr. Straton said:

"We should not permit Dr. Faunce to speak at this time, when there is a controversy on within our ranks. He should not be permitted to expound his liberal views, which are now under criticism. I demand that he be prohibited from speaking and that he be removed from the speakers' platform."

Here a storm of hisses forced Dr. Straton to take his seat. The storm of disapproval continued for several minutes before the chairman, pounding with his gavel, was able to restore order.

Finally Mr. Taylor beckoned to Dr. Faunce to mount the rostrum, which he did amid cheers. The delegates gave him a rising vote of approval.

MRS. LEEDS REVEALS POVERTY

"Mrs. Leeds wants everybody to know about this letter. It was her final effort to get James A. Stillman, father of her child, to obey the dictates of honor."

BEGS FOR AID

In the letter, written from her apartment at No. 969 Park avenue on October 22, 1922, she begged Stillman to save her and the child from desperate financial straits.

She reminded him that her conduct in shielding him during the divorce trial had the commendation of his sisters, Mrs. William G. and Mrs. Percy Rockefeller. She asked this bit of veiled suggestion:

"Surely not a Christian man would speak to you if they knew of your behavior. So please don't fail me. I am absolutely alone—with my problems and your boy."

STILLMAN LOVE NOTES.

There are other letters, many more. Most of them are from Stillman to Mrs. Leeds. They breathe warmest, tenderest love. Further, it is understood, they more than hint that the banker accepted a lifetime obligation to care for Mrs. Leeds and their son.

These letters, the originals have been made available to Hicks' law firm, Satterlee, Canfield & Stone, of this city. They will prove of vital importance in Mrs. Leeds' contemplated legal action to compel Stillman to support their son.

Hicks said:

"I have not examined the letters carefully as yet, but they are available when I wish to peruse them. I cannot discuss their contents, nor am I prepared to state at this time exactly what action we shall take.

"Although I have been active in this phase of the case but a short time, I am convinced Mrs. Leeds is a very much wronged little woman."

Elsewhere it was learned that Stillman's letters to his fiancee are so strongly phrased, so ardent in their nature and promises, as to virtually contain the essential legal elements of a written contract. Flo's proposed action, therefore, probably will take the form of a demand for "performance of contract" rather than be based upon the broader ground that little Jay Leeds may become a public charge unless his father comes to his support.

SATTERLEE AS COUNSEL.

Mrs. Leeds has powerful support in her contemplated action. The senior member of Hicks' law firm is Herbert L. Satterlee, brother-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan. A hint of the titanic financial struggles of a generation ago is contained in this fact, for it will be remembered James Stillman, "Jimmy" Stillman's father, was constantly allied with the financial group dominated by John D. Rockefeller.

Stillman was reported in conference with his attorney, Cornelius J. Sullivan.

He received news of Mrs. Leeds' public eruption, it was said, with the same peculiar calm that characterized his conduct in the entire course of the divorce and legitimacy case. Stillman knows that Flo Leeds is a fighter. The young woman made this plain in her brief interview with newspaper men and women.

FLO SHOWS TEMPER.

She spoke in velvet tones, but more than once her voice became harsh and she seemed even about to descend again into the solecisms of her youth. Nevertheless, she studiously avoided all personal criticism of Mr. Stillman. Once or twice her temper flared, and when certain embarrassing questions, calling for a concrete answer were asked her face flushed and she cried:

"Now I am going to say but what I want to say—no more. I'll go upstairs and go to bed if you ask me any more questions like that!"

She denied she had ever received a guaranteed sum in the form of a trust from Stillman, although it had been asserted in the hearings at Poughkeepsie that the total amount, Stillman lavished upon herself and the child had been $450,000. She said the child received a monthly allowance of $1,500 for three years—a total of $54,000.

Yet—in the next breath:

"I must sell this duplex apartment and its furnishings. It is worth $55,000. I saved this money. It was my own."

SPEAKS OF DIARY.

Mrs. Leeds spoke vaguely of her "writing ability," and of the diary she has kept in which she has entered in detail the story of her relations with Stillman. She did not intimate what disposition she would make of these.

She spoke also of a "medium" through which she would get her story to the public—"not the newspapers." She did not explain whether she had accepted a motion picture contract.

'Flo's' Letter Appeals to Stillman's 'Honor'

This is Flo Leed's pathetic letter to James A. Stillman, asking the latter to keep faith with their child, little Jay Ward Leeds. Copies of the letter were kept by Mrs. Leeds and given to the newspapers with her permission and that of her attorney.

"969 Park Avenue, Oct. 23, 1920.

"Consider not how I write this appeal to you, J., but why.

"It's for the love I bear our boy and my desire to do everything that is best for him.

"Together with the loniiness of my existence, the solitude of my thoughts and the endless bitterness of my unbelief—these are what prompt this last attempt to touch that which I hope exists in your nature: HONOR.

"Nearly two years ago you pleaded with me to stand by you. I did, loyally, and while I would not raise my voice to the detriment of the woman, or a child that was being fought for, I love you and told you:

"'I will stick till they carry you out in a cold, pine box.'

"I have never gone back on that, but I know now that it is not what you want, and with this realization, I cast aside all pride—all of the things that are—for those that were—and in this moment I do not seek your love or your purse—for myself—but just a word, helpful suggestion, for the welfare of little Jay.

Son Jay Is Your Flesh and Blood.

"No matter who your interests are centered in today, J., do not ignore this appeal, for whoever claims your attention now will pass—it is only a question of time. But, Jay, he is your flesh and blood—a part of you—that will go on forever, and I alone can speak for him.

"It is wrong for you to leave two helpless humans, without a word, and I know it is equally wrong to urge the unwilling to return, but surely moments such as we have known—in suffering together—count for at least consideration.

"To remind you of all this is very humiliating, I can assure you; but down in my heart I know I have done everything that in noble by the man, the woman and the child, under the circumstances.

"I did what you hoped I would do. My self-control and silence surprised you. The ordeal has brought out anything that was fine in me. I am better for having gone through it, and while externally defeated, in my loss of you, I have established something within me that will never die. And in closing this door behind me, I feel I shall open up another into better and finer things.

"In less elaborate terms, the helpful suggestions I ask of you deal mostly with the will. You drew it up, making yourself guardian of Jay.

"If anything unforseen happens, do you still want to take him?

"If you have changed your mind with regard to this, too, I must make a new selection. Settling this will greatly add to my peace of mind.

"Then this place. It is beyond me with its taxes and upkeep and far exceeds my purse, since you have never returned the money I spent in traveling during your hour of trial.

"All this actuates my placing it the apartment at No. 969 Park avenue, where Mrs. Leeds now lives) on the market. The return will keep the wolf from the door till Jay is old enough to work for himself.

"I believe that any large principal is a hindrance to a man. It does not give his character a chance to assert itself. But I hoped you would continue Jay's monthly allowance until he was twenty-one, which could have been applied to his education.

Promised to Keep Up Boy's Allowance.

"And then, too, you promised you would.

"There are many things which I will not attempt to enumerate here.

"Cannot we go over them altogether—it would only take an hour?

"You often wrote you were proud of me, and that I had the commendation of your sisters; but surely not a Christian man would speak to you if they knew of your behavior, so please don't fail me.

"I am absolutely alone—with my problems—and your boy."

ART MODEL WINS SUIT FOR CASH, FURNITURE AND AUTOMOBILE

BROMFIELD ST. DEALER LOSES

Fisk Claimed Mrs. Lowe Had Agreed to Live With Him as Man and Wife

A bill in equity brought by James M. Fisk, Bromfield street art dealer, against Mrs. Flora S. Lowe, former art model, to recover property and cash he said he gave her in trust in an arrangement to live with her as man and wife, was dismissed by Judge Wait in Suffolk Superior Court today for lack of prosecution.

The property sought in Fisk's suit included $5,000 cash, a certified check for $1,800, valuable furniture and an automobile.

Mr. Fisk lives at No. 116 Brighton avenue, Allston. Mrs. Lowe was living in Brookline, but is now living with friends in White street, East Boston.

In her answer to Fisk's bill, Mrs. Lowe denied all his allegations.

Stripped of its legal language, his declaration was that he entered into arrangements with Mrs. Lowe to live with her illegally. In consideration of this he caused $5,000 to be placed in trust for her; also furnished an apartment for her and bought her an automobile.

Mrs. Lowe asserted that she acquired the money and furniture from her earnings and sale of property she owned, and that Fisk gave her the automobile to transport her back from Chicago.

MIGHT SOLVE BANK TAX MUDDLE

The Legislature, First National Bank and City of Boston today agreed to a solution of the national bank tax muddle.

Governor Cox has not approved yet.

Under the proposed arrangement the state would pay back to the First National $1,500,000 and taxes to the other national banks which would bring the total above $2,000,000.

The banks have claimed the collection of this money was unconstitutional.

In the future the state will tax the banks 12 1-2 per cent of their net income, if the plan goes through, and increase ten per cent the tax on corporations and tax on incomes from intangibles.

Victim of Attack

MRS. VELELMINA ADAMS.

SEEK ARREST OF MAN WHO BOUND FORMER WIFE

A warrant for the arrest of Simeon Adams of Lynn, who is suspected of being one of the two masked men who bound, gagged and tortured his divorced wife, Velelmina, in the home of her parents at Peabody, was to be sought by her relatives today.

Adams, who lives in Elizabeth street, West Lynn, denies that he was one of the torturers of the nineteen-year-old Greek girl. He was to be questioned by Police Inspector Pierce of Peabody. The other assailant, alleged to have been a Chinaman, is known to them, the Peabody police say.

Peter Marjinnes, brother of the girl, stated that Adams had been jealous of his wife and that he resented her divorce for cruel and abusive treatment. Other relatives declare that Adams visited the home of John Sakaris at No. 18 Highland park, opposite that of the girl at No. 15, on Sunday last.

Mrs. Adams, restored to consciousness after two hours' treatment by a physician, told the following story:

"I was sitting in the dining room reading a paper, when two masked men entered the room. One of them looked a great deal like my husband, although I could not see his features. This man pointed a revolver at me while the other seized me and dragged me into the bedroom.

"There he tied me to the bedpost. I resisted before I was overpowered I tore off his mask. He was a Chinaman. I was so frightened that I begged the other man to shoot.

"They then took two knives and a forceps out of their pockets and one of them proceeded to slash my arms, while they shouted: 'Spoil her face, tear her teeth out.'

"Then they suddenly stopped and ran away. I think they must have been frightened by an automobile outside. They did not take any money or valuables from the house."

Mrs. Adams was married to Adams at seventeen. Relatives said it was not a love match, but was arranged by the girl's parents Adams represented himself as twenty-two years old, when in reality he was forty-four, they asserted.

DUAL IDENTITY KNOWN TO MRS. SLATER

Mystery as to the dual identity of Aimee A. Jones—otherwise known as Mrs. J. A. Sweeney—one of the two trustees whom Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater seeks to oust from control of her personal fortune of $7,00,000, was increased rather than lessened today by a statement from Mrs. Slater.

The statement made by Mrs. Slater, through her counsel, Major Thomas L. Walsh, was:

"I have implicit faith and confidence in my former secretary, Aimee A. Jones. There is no mystery about her domestic affairs, as I have known of all the circumstances of her life, domestic and private.

"I am merely petitioning for an accounting of the trusteeship and respectfully request the reclamation of the trustees in order that my financial affairs be transferred to New York, where I am now residing."

Mrs. Slater, while aware, according to the above statement, of both domestic and private phases of the life of Aimee A. Jones-Sweeney, did not hesitate to name her as one of two trustees in complete control of Mrs. Slate's huge wealth.

But why the former social secretary to Mrs. Slater should be named in the trust agreement as Aimee A. Jones and known at No. 56 Linden street, Allston, where she has been living nine years, as Mrs. A. J. Sweeney, wife of a Worcester railroad man, were questions unanswered today.

Frederick J. Bradlee, actuary at the Bay State branch of the Old Colony Trust company and the other Slater trustee, is the one who is blocking Mrs. Slater's wish to regain personal control of her own property according to Major Walsh.

Major Walsh says Bradlee has refused to resign.

Persons knowing Mrs. A. J. Sweeney, Allston, are amazed to learn that she is the Aimee A. Jones of the Slater trusteeship.

Persons who have known Aimee A. Jones as a spinster and former secretary to Mrs. Slater, are equally surprised to hear that she is Mrs. Sweeney of the Linden street apartment.

CATHOLIC FORESTERS OPEN CONVENTION

Worcester, May 23.—The 44th annual convention of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters opened today with 1,100 delegates in Mechanics Hall. A solemn high mass of requiem for deceased members in St. Paul's Church was offered by Rev. Dr. J. H. O'Neil, State chaplain, assisted by Rev. Joseph M. Ryman of Worcester and Rev. Walter L. Leahy of Worcester. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Peter F. Sullivan. The order numbers 54,000 in Massachusetts, an increase of 3,200 during the past year. John J. Collins of Springfield, is to be elected high chief ranger to succeed James E. O'Leary of Worcester.

COX SIGNS BILL OUSTING 30 BAIL MEN

A bill authorizing the removal of all the bail commissioners in Suffolk County and for the appointment of a complete force of twenty commissioners by Sheriff John A. Kelliher was signed by Governor Cox today.

The present force of thirty commissioners was appointed less than two months ago by the Superior Court, following the revelations of the most sordid scandals.

An investigation had revealed that outrageously high bail fees were being charged. Many of the commissioners were in cahoots with the police. Favored bail commissioners arrived at the police stations at the same time as patrol wagonloads of prisoners arrested in gambling and vice raids that were supposed to have been secret. It was charged that police officials constantly "tipped" the commissioners over the phone.

It was found that many of the commissioners accepted pledges for real estate which never existed. The county lost hundreds of thousands of dollars through "straw" bail.

FEAR FOR BANDIT CAPTIVES GROWS

Washington, May 23. (I. N. S.)—Anxiety over the Chinese situation, was deepened here today because of continued silence of Minister Schurman, who has not reported to Secretary of State Hughes for forty-eight hours. State Department officials were in almost total ignorance of what steps are being taken to free the Americans and other foreigners held by the Shantung bandits, the only advices reaching here being from Consul Cunningham at Shanghai, who reported that all the women prisoners had been liberated.

Shanghai, May 23. (A. P.)—Relief workers at Taochwang, nearest point to the stronghold of the Szchow train bandits, today reported the arrival of messengers from the brigand's mountain retreat with the information that the outlaws had not carried out their death threat against the foreign captives.

WOMEN BATTLE IN POLICE STATION

Crazed by moonshine, Mrs. Catherine Hurley, forty-seven, of No. 61 Stamford street, West End, attacked Mrs. Minnie Gablin, thirty-four, of No. 197 Sumner street, East Boston, in the matron's room of East [illegible] station today, biting her ring finger so severely as to require medical attention. police reports say. Both women were being questioned in regard to intoxication charges when the attack occurred. Police say both women were recently released from serving terms for drunkenness.

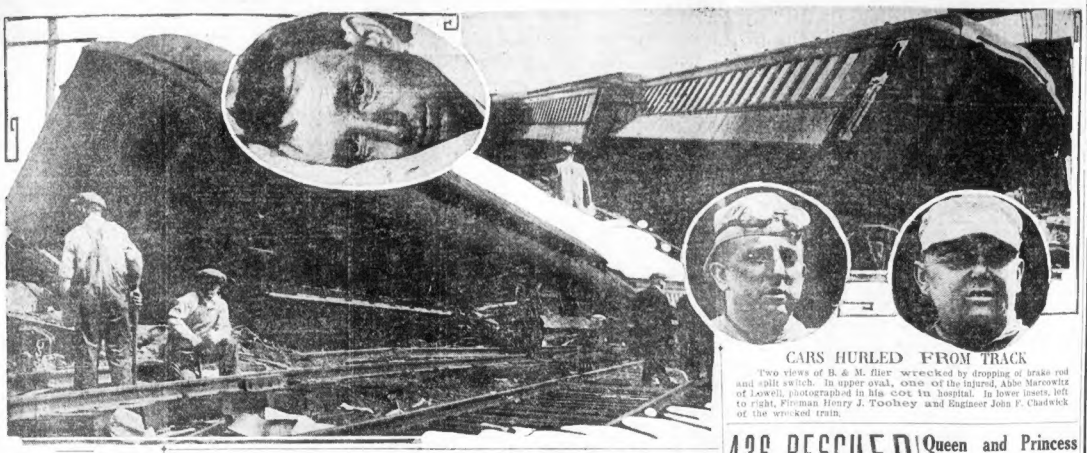
FIFTY INJURED IN B. & M. TRAIN DERAILMENT AT WINCHESTER



CARS HURLED FROM TRACK

Two views of B. & M. flier wrecked by dropping of brake rod and split switch. In upper oval, one of the injured, Abbe Marcowitz of Lowell, photographed in his cot in hospital. In lower insets, left to right, Fireman Henry J. Toohey and Engineer John F. Chadwick of the wrecked train.

Fred L. Ercoline, Wilmington.

James E. Gorman, No. 566 Westford street, Lowell.

T. P. Donnelley, No. 91 Third street, Lowell.

Wendell Henderson, Wilmington.

Alberta N. Dege, No. 38 Front street, Lowell.

Martin Mackourtz, Lowell.

Mrs. E. F. Rice, Wilmington.

Miss Agnes Hemon, Wilmington.

Udell suffered a fracture of three ribs. Mrs. Stackpole sprained an ankle. The rest suffered bruises, cuts and contusions.

The fact that the passenger cars were made of steel is believed responsible for the lack of fatalities. It is believed 200 lives may have been saved because the cars were steel.

WOODEN CAR AT HEAD.

The combination baggage and smoking car behind the engine was of wood, and it was from that car that the brake rod was said to have dropped.

A remarkable instance of speed and efficiency came to light in connection with the derailment.

Within ten minutes of the accident an emergency hospital had been rigged up in a nearby factory, and four doctors were on the job. Within twenty minutes the New England Telephone Company had put up a field telephone connection which enabled the passengers to communicate with their families and to reassure them.

The first person on the scene of the accident was Miss Alice Gormley, visiting nurse at the Winchester hospital. With Arthur A. Mullen, a truck driver of the J. O. Whitten Gelatine Company, assisting her she began to give first aid to the injured, while C. A. Perkins, manager of the company, sent in hurry calls for several physicians.

An emergency hospital was rigged up in the gelatine factory, which is about a hundred yards from the scene of the accident. Within ten minutes, Drs. Sheehy, Conway, Putnam and Bennett had arrived on the scene and were giving treatment to the injured.

Three of the injured were taken to the Winchester Hospital and five to the Lowell Hospital.

J. S. Chadwick was engineer of the train, H. J. Toohey fireman and Harry F. Smith conductor.

The train left Concord at 5:15 and was due in Boston at 7:37, Eastern Standard Time. Half a dozen cars left the track and narrowly escaped going down an embankment, but none overturned. The locomotive remained on the rails. The tracks were torn up for a considerable distance and traffic on the main line of the Southern Division was blocked.

William F. Auld of No. 92 Highland avenue, Somerville, a brakeman on the train, managed to get to Boston and proceeded to a hospital in a taxicab. He had a broken left arm and sustained possible internal injuries. Before leaving for the hospital, he said:

"This is one occasion where steel cars saved money for the Boston & Maine Railroad. The fact that the train was made of steel cars saved many lives, in my opinion.

"I estimate the number of injured at fifty, but nobody was seriously injured."

Railroad officials immediately began an investigation to determine the cause of the derailment.

TAKES $5 RISK ON SAFE; GETS BACK $1,229

Haverhill, May 23.—Charles Rosengard, River street safe dealer, bought the old safe Maurice Fitzgerald used to keep in his saloon.

Fitzgerald had forgotten the combination and lost the paper containing it.

They agreed on a price for the safe. Then Rosengard paid $5 extra to entitle him to any and all contents of the safe. He secured Fitzgerald's signature to that effect. It was a $5 speculation.

A safe expert opened it. All the safe held was one dollar in change and—

Ten shares of the American Tel. & Tel. stock which Rosengard promptly sold in Boston for $1,229.-09 cash.

When the story got around Fitzgerald blinked. Then dashed for a lawyer. Now he and the lawyer are seeking some basis for action.

436 RESCUED SUFFER FROM EXPOSURE

St. John's N. F., May 23.—The passengers and crew of the wrecked Canadian Pacific liner Marvale arrived here today. The passengers came from Trepassey by train and the crew on the government steamer Sagu. All were well.

They were given quarters in various hotels and the seamen's home to await the arrival of the Canadian Pacific liner Molita from Montreal, to which they will be transferred.

The shipwrecked company, including numerous women and about 20 infants, suffered severely from cold, loss of sleep and scarcity of food. All lost their personal possessions, escaping the doomed ship with nothing but the clothing they were wearing.

All joined in praise for Captain Lewis, declaring that his seaman ship, coolness and judgment were responsible for the salvation of passengers and crew.

Queen and Princess Mary Narrowly Escape Crash

Aldershot, May 23 (A. P.)—Queen Mary and Princess Mary escaped a serious accident today while motoring here, when a motor lorry dashed from a side road and collided with the car of Lieutenant-General Sir Philip Chetwode, which was following close behind the royal motor car. Through great presence of mind on the part of the driver of Sir Philip's car no one was hurt, although the machines were damaged.

MANY KILLED IN GERMAN MINE RIOTING

Dusseldorf, May 23 (A. P.)—Rioting is in progress today in the Dortmund district. Several miners have been killed and others wounded in a conflict with the police.

According to reports received at French headquarters here, 20,000 striking miners held a demonstration in the square at Dortmund. The police, in endeavoring to disperse the gathering, fired, killing several persons and wounding many others.

The angered crowds attacked the police, of whom many were wounded.

Similar demonstrations occurred at the Scharnhorst mine, nearby, where several workmen were killed and others wounded by the police.

The miners' strike was brought about by Communist agitators and demands for higher wages, and they are now reported to be trying to effect a general strike throughout the Dortmund area, affecting 200,000 workers.

Lacking a bathtub, he arranged to use a dishpan. He and his wife argued about the best way to carry the pan of water from the stove to a chamber. Martin, clad in underwear only, picked up the pan, but somehow tipped the contents toward him, receiving severe scalds on body and legs.

SHOE STRIKERS PLAN PARADE IN BROCKTON

Brockton, May 23.—A street parade and mass meeting of the striking shoe workers will be held tomorrow.

Approximately 10,000 persons will be in line, according to Joseph E. Lacouture, president of the newly formed Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union, and Dennis E. McCarthy, secretary.

Leaders of the new union will speak on the aims of the organization and on the strike. They are confident more than 15,000 will attend the meeting.

The shoe industry in this city and surrounding district is virtually at a standstill as a result of the strike.

Twelve thousand shoe operatives are now out. More than half of these are strikers.

Pickets from the striking bodies are today spreading quiet propaganda among the operatives remaining at their posts, and are gradually adding to their ranks.

"We are willing to return to work without making wage demands," said a strike leader, "but we will not return to work as members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union."

The following locals held meetings and took strike votes during the night in Brockton:

Stitchers' local, 2,100 members, voted to strike and to withdraw from the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

Heelers' local, 350 members, voted to strike and secede.

Vampers' local, 300 members, strike and secede.

Sole Fasteners' local, 500 members, adjourned after heated debate, without taking strike vote.

'JERSEY JUSTICE' FOR COPS' SLAYER

Jersey City, N. J., May 23 (I. N. S.)—Swiftly moving "Jersey Justice," it was said at the Prosecutor's office today, probably will bring about the conviction and sentencing by Monday night of Frank Miller and Mrs. Mary Mc Muser for the murder here of Detective John G. Black and Patrolman Clarence Weir. Miller and the young woman he claims is his wife, have been indicted on charge of murder.

Lieutenant Harry Otis, seriously wounded in the affray, signed a statement that Mrs. Muser fired the shot that killed Weir.

Miller lost his nerve today. "Go easy with me," he pleaded in his cell. Mrs. Muser's attitude was one of bravado. In the Miller flat were also found four pistols, almost a hundred cartridges. Two sticks of dynamite and a fuse.

TO HOLD COTTON TILL PRICE GOES UP

Orangeburg, S. C., May 23.—The American Cotton Association is planning a movement throughout the South to withhold until it reaches a price level where cotton farmers can make a "legitimate profit," J. S. Wannamaker, president of the association, declared in an address here. The plan he outlined would provide for the buying of bales of cotton by individuals, clubs and corporations, the cotton to be stored in warehouses and not to be sold within a period of one, two or three years, unless cotton goes up to 50 cents a pound.

Tiffany the Jeweler Had Also Visited Clairvoyant, Manville Was Informed

New York, May 23.—Poetry, spiritualism and the keen wit of the eighty-nine-year-old defendant, Charles B. Manville, all went to make up the second day in court of the case of Austin versus Manville.

Dr. Alonzo E. Austin is suing Manville for $21,000, said to be due on notes endorsed by both of them. Manville has countered in a suit against Dr. Austin for $20,000, alleging he was induced to invest that amount in worthless oil stock on misrepresentations by Austin.

In dealing with the alleged close friendship which existed between Manville, Dr. Austin and Austin's wife and his sister, Mrs. C. C. Hall, stress was laid on numerous engagements Manville had with the Austins.

POETRY IN EVIDENCE

Manville alleges that even the place cards at the Austin home bore reference to oil stock. This was denied by Austin. Several of the cards were offered in evidence. One card read:

"January 2, 1919.

Dear Mr. Manville, here's posies for you?
Posies in your New Year's path we would strew
To gladden your journey, brighten your view,
For that is the way you always do.
(Signed) C. C. H."

Another card bore a riddle. It read:

EVOKES A SMILE.

"Why is dough like the sun?"

"Ans. When is rises it's light."

This card was dated November 29, 1918, and was decorated in American flags.

The aged financier smiled as he read this place card:

"A royal welcome to our royal friend, Mister C. B. Manville.

"A courtier to the Kink in his beauty.

"Who forsakes not his own up the hill of Duty.

"To the palace beautiful built by his will,

"To refresh his own that they may dring their fill.

"Of the living Waters and the Bread of Life

"To give them strength and joy for this mortal strife.

"Affectionate welcome to Mr. Manville."

This was signed "C. C. Hall."

The subject of spiritualism was introduced in the testimony of the aged financier. He said:

"With Dr. Austin, I went to call upon Miss Beulah Thompson. When I reached her apartment a voice was calling 'C. B., C. B.' That is the way my wife had addressed me. I was startled. I had been advised by the doctor that such men as Charles Schwab and Tiffany consulted this woman on business transactions.

HELD FAMILY SECRETS

"When I asked if the voice was the result of spiritualism, she said it was not, but that it was black art. She then told me of some controversies I had had with my children. I did not know anyone outside of my own family knew about this. I asked Austin what he had told her about me. He replied that he had not said a thing.

"When I asked her about the United States Copper Company's mines in Mexico, she said: Go deeper, go deeper. She told me that the Pennsylvania Kentucky oil stock was good. I gave her a ten dollar bill."

Miss Beulah Thompson was in court and Manville identified her as the woman to whom Dr. Austin introduced him.

SALEM MOVE FOR "THREE-DECKERS"

Agitation over the building of wooden three-deckers in Salem may take concrete form. There is a move on foot, it is claimed, to get up a referendum petition to legalize the erection of three-deckers, with the idea of having the question voted upon by the electorate at the election in the late Fall. It is also claimed there will be a candidate for councillor-at-large, running on a "three-decker" platform.

Sporting Events Attract Society Folk, Says Betty Alden

IT won't be long before the L organs begin to peal out "Here comes the bride!" and in the meantime, society promises to be kept fairly busy with numerous sporting events.

Tomorrow marks the opening of the racing season at Belmont Park, which event will attract the fashionables not only from New York, but from Boston, Philadelphia and Washington as well. The Turf and Field Club will, as in former years, be the scene of numerous luncheon parties, and if the day is fine, tables will be placed under the great trees surrounding the old Manice mansion. Almost all the owners of estates on the island will have house parties, so that there will be plenty of entertaining in connection with the races.

Apropos of sporting events, I suppose that Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., will be considerably interested in the whippet races to be held early next month at Tuxedo Park. His wife, the former Phyllis Sears, is about as interested in the sport as her husband, which reminds me that they and their young family have just recently returned from a stay of several months in England, whither they went for the hunting season. With them were Major Appleton and his sister, Mrs. Clarence Hay (Alice Appleton), prominent members of the New York colony on the North Shore.

Sometime in the Fall, the Tuckermans Jr. will move into their new home at Ipswich, when Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wolcott (Sybil Appleton) will occupy the Tuckerman's present home.

MISS KATHERINE FAY of Wellesley Hills, who's now making her annual Spring sojourn at Hot Springs, entertained at dinner at the Homestead the other evening. Among her guests were Mrs. Tom Motley and Dr. John Warren of Boston, as well as the Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz, Miss Gladys Livermore, Robert Batcheller and Mrs. Gladys Brooks Thayer, who secured her divorce from Eugene F. B. Thayer in Paris last month.

I SEE that slender Louise Page, with her Titian hair and piquante face, has returned from abroad with her mother, Mrs. Edward Page.

Miss Page was presented to society last Fall, sailing several months later for Italy, where she continued her painting. I remember that this particular bud—like so many others whose hair is of similar hue—was usually gowned in green. She was also greatly devoted to rather long, dangly earrings, which gave her quite an "interesting" look.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS B. SEARS have joined the Spring exodus sailing for Europe. They sailed last week from New York on board the Cedric.

Mrs. Edward Page and her daughter, Miss Louise Page, of Boston, returned from Europe the other day. Miss Page, a debutante of the past season, continued her art studies in Italy during her stay abroad.

GIRL MOTHER, ILL, BEGS HOME FOR BABY

LUCY SAUNDERS AND BABY

Finding the burden greater than she can bear, nineteen-year-old Lucy Saunders offers her sixteen-month-old boy for adoption to anyone who can give him the decent advantages and opportunities of life.

"I want my boy to have what I, as one of ten children, missed," the girl-mother told a Boston American reporter. "I am willing to give up Robert because my love for his future welfare is greater than my selfishness for his possession.

"Bobbie is a good child. He always plays and hardly if ever is cross or fussy. But I can't support him. I haven't the strength nor the means. I have already undergone two operations and the doctor tells me I must go through another.

"Won't you please ask your readers to help me with my baby?"

Robert is an adorable youngster, simply vibrating with life and buoyancy. A mass of titian gold ringlets fall over his forehead. If he isn't holding your watch or pulling at your tie, he's climbing up your knees and begging to be hugged and kissed.

Because of complications of childbirth at too early an age, the girl has been informed by hospital physicians that she will never be the same. She needs a rest in the country for at least an entire Summer. But the bare necessities of life demand that this physically unfit girl go out and work in order that she might live!

CHILDREN IN PANIC AT FIRST MOVIE SHOW

London, May 23.—The first movie show ever witnessed by children on the island of St. Kilda, west of Scotland, so terrified them that they stampeded from the schoolroom and sought safety on the wild hillsides. St. Kilda is inhabited by a semi-civilized people, and a party of visitors, thinking to give the natives a treat, arranged a motion picture entertainment. The audience sat unmoved through a picture of a football match, but when an express train rushed at them across the screen the youngsters screamed and fled.

BAN ENEMY WREATHS FOR HEROES

Veterans of All Our Wars Incensed at Sale of German-Made Flowers

Artificial wreaths and poppies made in Germany, have been banned by the war veterans of Massachusetts, for decorating the graves of their dead comrades.

Officials of the Grand Army, United Spanish War Veterans, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars today scored "patriotic florists" who were foisting German-made wreaths on America, and instructions will be sent to the various posts and camps throughout the State to buy no wreaths of German origin.

"It is inconsistent, to say the least, to decorate the graves of our dead with flowers made in the country that was responsible for their deaths," was Commander Doyle's summary.

Boston florists estimate that nine-tenths of the artificial flowers to be used on Memorial Day were made in Germany.

Commander Doyle flayed "patriotic florists" who would foist German-made wreaths on the war veterans of America because of the extra profit. The fact that the German-made articles can be constructed at less expense than the American product was stated by Doyle as the reason that prompted many American flower dealers to sell them.

"The wreaths and poppies that are distributed through the National headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis are absolutely of American make. Posts who buy direct from dealers cannot be sure they are not buying German-made flowers.

TO PUBLISH NAMES

"I am going to notify every Post in my department to keep a close watch on the wreaths they buy this year and report to me any cases of deception on the part of dealers. I intend to publish the names of any dealers who sell wreaths of German make which were bought as domestic flowers."

Commander Dunn was equally emphatic.

"The greater profit to the dealer in selling German-made wreaths and poppies naturally prompts them to deal in these flowers. It is a poor occasion to pass off these flowers, though. I have had a special committee working on this matter for some time and every precaution will be taken to guard against getting any but domestic-made flowers.

HIGHLY COLORED.

The German-made wreaths are generally made of paper or cloth, highly-colored. The red coloring of the poppies appears strikingly strong, as well as the green and the purple leaves and bulbs of the plant.

The wire framework in a large number of instances are covered with tinfoil and the whole backed with an addition of cardboard. The dyes on the flowers appear to be dipped in a strong bath, showing particles of the dye on the surface.

Most of the goods arriving in this country, it was learned, were shipped to Philadelphia concerns, where the "Made in Germany" labels or stamps are removed before they are sent to dealers throughout the country.

Both Commander Dunn and Commander Doyle expressed the opinion that the posts would pay more for their wreaths in order to get domestic-made flowers rather than obtain their quota at lower prices but made in Germany.

Edna W. Pike, assistant adjutant general of the Grand Army, characterized the sale of German-made wreaths as "a matter of dollars and cents, rather than a shortage of American wreaths."

"The graves of American soldiers should be decorated with nothing but American wreaths," declared Department Commander William M. Hogan of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Camps of the Spanish War Veterans will make sure that the wreaths they buy will be made in America.

Indianapolis, May 23.—Sale of poppies made in Germany by American commercial houses for use in commemorating soldier dead was declared "an insult to the heroic dead of the World War" by Lemuel Boiles, National Adjutant of the Legion, in a statement.

Girl Baby Weighing Two and Half Pounds Born in Wollaston

A girl baby weighing two and one-half pounds and measuring ten inches in length, probably the smallest little girl in the country, lies rolled in woolen blankets, in a temperature of 93 degrees, at the Whitehouse Maternity Hospital, Wollaston. She is apparently as normal in every way as the eight, nine and ten-pound babies lying in the neighboring cribs.

The baby was born May 18 at the hospital to Mr. and Mrs. John R. MacKay of No. 333 Washington street, Braintree. The mother is a former Wollaston girl.

HOLD CANADIAN SOLDIER UPON WIFE'S CHARGE

The Canadian Government is to be asked to take a hand in the international non-support case of Edward Farron, native of Nashua, N., but now a soldier of the Dominion and in trouble in Lynn Court.

Farron, who is only twenty, was in court on complaint of his wife, Emma, who is thirty-two.

She told the court that last December Farron deserted her in Lynn, went to Canada and enlisted. She did not hear from him. But he came to Boston on furlough recently, she said, was arrested and then was released on the agreement there was no guarantee that he would make payments, once he gets back over the Canadian line.

The case was continued to May 31 while Probation Officer Charles H. Colby writes to the Canadian government at Ottawa, asking that some guarantee of support for Mrs. Farron and the coming baby is insured.

Farron's counsel objected to the week's continuance, saying Farron's furlough expires in three days and he is liable to a charge of desertion from the army when he returns. But the continued date stood. Farron was held in $300.

FAMOUS MILITANT SUFFRAGIST DEAD

London, May 23.—Lady Constance Lytton, celebrated militant suffragist and hunger striker, is dead. She was the daughter of the first Earl of Lytton. She was imprisoned four times for her belligerence in the cause of woman suffrage. Finally she disguised herself as a woman of the working class and, under the pseudonym of Jane Warton, continued her militant campaign. She was arrested, put in Walton prison, Liverpool, and was forcibly fed when she went on hunger strike for the second time.

MINISTER'S CRITICISM RESENTED

Clubwomen Roused by Minister Who Calls Their Protest "Silly Performance"

Members of Wollaston Women's Club are so mad at the Rev. William B. Ayers that their delegates to the annual convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Swampscott today may seek action by the State body.

They are angry at what Pastor Ayers said about the Wollaston Women's Club and its members in his Sunday evening sermon in the Wollaston Union Congregational Church.

He attacked the women for their recent resolutions against alleged improper conditions at Wollaston Beach.

Rev. W. B. Ayres

He blasted their beach protest as a "silly performance." He called it "unsavory advertising."

WOMEN IN PROTEST.

The club women, in a protest to the Metropolitan Park Commission, which has supervision of the beach, made accusation that:

Conditions at Wollaston Beach during the bathing season tend toward the immoral.

Women have patronized the beach in shocking bathing costumes.

Automobiles are used as dressing rooms.

Actions after dark are unbecoming.

Pastor Ayers preached Sunday evening on "The Fool." He said among other things:

"The community has come in for considerable unsavory advertising lately at the hands of heedless and thoughtless people, who seem more interested in personal and corporate advertising than in the good of their community. The whole world has been told lately and repeatedly how terrible conditions are at Wollaston Beach.

"A great public sentiment must be roused. The thing must be debated in the club—the minister and the press must be roused to action.

"Conferences must be arranged, meantime a great deal of credit would be claimed and would return to those brave spirits which have been the inspiration of it all—wonderful advertising!

"Tell the world what a rotten community you live in, and by all means do not let anybody forget how much credit is due you for having started the lie! It is a silly performance and can do nothing but damage to our community.

"If there are conditions on our beaches that offend they can be easily corrected without any damage to our community. The Metropolitan Commission is ready at all times to co-operate to this end. Let any responsible person or body or representative go quietly before them and state the case—they will act."

HUNDREDS DELAYED BY TUNNEL TIE UP

Passengers on the first train through the Dorchester tunnel were held in darkness for twenty minutes today when a trolley wire, used for work trains, dropped to the floor. When Elevated employes saw the damage could not be repaired immediately the passengers were directed to the Andrews square station and put aboard surface cars. Hundreds enroute to work were delayed.

SCHOOL EXPERT IS NAMED BY MAYOR

Mayor Curley today appointed William W. Drummey of Dorchester architect in charge of the standardization of school buildings at a salary of $5,500. He will perfect a standard plan for school buildings of eight rooms or less. The Mayor believes this method will save the city $250,000 a year.

HER BOSTON HUSBAND CHARGES DESERTION

ALEXANDRA CARLISLE

The husband of the prominent actress, Dr. Albert Pfeiffer of Boston, asks divorce on grounds of desertion.

HUSBAND SUES ALEXANDRA CARLISLE

Alexandra Carlisle, widely known as an actress and as the woman who seconded the nomination of Vice-President Coolidge at the Republican National Convention, has been sued for divorce by her husband, Dr. Albert Pfeiffer, of the State Health Department.

The filing of the suit occasioned great surprise even to intimate friends of both parties, for only eight days ago both professed undying love for each other and indignantly denied reports that they were to get divorce.

She is in Boston, playing the leading feminine role in "The Fool" at the Selwyn Theatre.

Dr. Pfeiffer alleges that his actress-wife deserted him three years ago when he maintained a home for her at the Cambridge Hotel, No. 483 Beacon street.

Since that time, it is understood, she has made her home in New York and London.

The actress, a divorcee, was married to Dr. Pfeiffer in London, October 7, 1912, while playing there in "Everywoman." They have a six-year-old daughter, living with a relative in New York.

Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle has been retained as counsel by the actress. Attorney Martin Hays represents Dr. Pfeiffer.

SUES AFTER 'SLIP OF TONGUE'

Commander Woodward Says Wife Had Husband When He Married Her

The slip of a woman's tongue has led Commander James S. Woodward of Chelsea Naval Hospital to the Suffolk County Divorce Court.

He is seeking annulment of his marriage to Mary Amelia Wompetich, an unusually attractive young Hungarian woman, whom he met in Europe.

The commander charges she had a husband in Europe when she married him.

Then, one day, according to the commander, her tongue slipped and she casually mentioned her alleged European husband, Rudolph Wompetich of Budapest.

This was the first intimation the commander had that his "wife" had been married before, he says.

CONFESSED, HE SAYS.

He followed up his "wife's" slip of the tongue and by questioning her obtained a confession of her former marital life with Wompetich, according to the commander.

This "confession" is said to be in the possession of Attorney Arthur J. Selfridge of No. 15 Congress street, counsel for Commander Woodward.

It will be used at the forthcoming trial according to Attorney Selfridge.

It is understood that in the "confession" the commander's "wife" admits marrying Wompetich and not being divorced from him.

Following this incident Commander Woodward left his "wife" and she returned to Neutitschein, Czecho-Slovakia.

LIVES IN BROOKLINE.

Later she returned to this country and is living in Brookline.

Pending hearing of the case Judge Sanderson of the Superior Court has allowed her $30 a week temporary alimony.

Commander Woodward met his "wife" in Europe. The marriage took place in New York, October 26, 1921. Their courtship was carried on in German, as the commander could not speak Hungarian and she spoke little English. They lived together until May 12, 1922, when the slip of the tongue is alleged to have occurred.

HUNT GIRL FOR VERMONT CLUB SWINDLE

New York, May 23.—A scheme for a huge country club in Vermont's Green Mountains with a 10,000 membership, and in which names of prominent men were used, was brought to light by the indictment of Miss Rita E. Roberts, the promoter, on a charge of grand larceny.

Detectives armed with warrants began a search for the woman.

Miss Roberts, it was alleged, obtained sums ranging from $100 to $1,100 from a number of persons, promising them employment at large salaries when the club was completed.

Louis Vendepoel, who asserted he gave her $500 to become head steward of the club, said she had moved from a modest apartment to an expensive suite in a well known hotel the day after she got the money.

Governor Smith and Rodman Wanamaker, whose names were said to have been used in the promotion, denied any connection with the proposed club.

CIVIL WAR VET DIES ON WAY TO BOSTON

John Manning, a Civil War veteran, fell dead at Portland, Me., while about to board a boat for Boston. He was on his way to visit Edward McManus of No. 23 Plummer avenue, Winthrop. Mr. Manning and a cousin of Mr. McManus fought together during the war and have been cronies since at the National Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va. A nephew, T. Manning, is said to reside in Boston. A check for $1,343 was found in Mr. Manning's pocket.

NAMESTERS!

What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a slangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers a dollar to any one who sends in a bright or unusual sentence made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE reformers say that the average person talks too much and it won't be long before they'll be putting meters on our mouths.

THEY'LL allow us five hundred words a day and charge us a cent each for every extra one we use.

THIS law would sure be tough on the women.

AND it would be kind of expensive for people who talk in their sleep.

CAN you imagine going down to the City Hall every day and having your mouth read?

THE clerk would tell some dame that she used two hundred and fifty excess words and then she'd use three hundred more arguing with him about it.

IF we didn't pay our talking bills they'd probably have the meter fixed so that it would shut off our speech.

BUT some people talk so fast that they'd break the meter the first day.

IT would give the husbands a chance, though; a wife would soon get tired using up all of her spending money trying to have the last word.

EACH person would be responsible for their own meter, and no matter how much money a woman's husband had she couldn't talk to him collect.

IF she didn't pay her bill, he wouldn't have to worry, the city wouldn't cut off his breath.

OF course, they'd have to allow children two or three thousand words a day; otherwise the parents would go broke paying for their foolish questions.

WE could get around this law by talking with our hands, but as soon as we did that they'd put meters on our fingers.

IF they did this it would cost some girls five or ten dollars to wave good-bye to their sweethearts.

Records Sure to Go in Big Intercollegiates

COLORED STARS TO SIGN UP

N. E. STARS MAY SET MARKS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Never on the eve of an annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field meeting has there been prospect of the equalling or bettering so many records as is the case with the forty-seventh running of that set of games at Philadelphia this week.

Holders of the existing Intercollegiate records will appear in two of the events, each ambitious to set his mark a notch higher, while in at least seven other of the remaining thirteen contests there will compete one or more athletes whose marks this season surpass or closely approach the records now on the Intercollegiate chart and in one or two cases world's records as well as Intercollegiate records are situated in the range of these track and field stars.

Those whose names now appear as real Intercollegiate records are Al LeConey of Lafayette, whose 440-yard mark in the century dash last year is the existing Inter mark, and LeRoy Brown of Dart mouth, whose leap of 6 feet 4 inches is one inch better than any other mark ever made by any athlete in Intercollegiate history.

Tootell and Hills Beat Old Marks

Those who, in preliminary competition this year, have shown performances superior to the existing Intercollegiate records in these events are Fred Tootell of Bowdoin, whose Penn relay carnival hammer throw mark of 174 feet 8 inches is three feet three inches better than the existing mark; Ralph Hills of Princeton, whose Harvard-Princeton dual meet mark of 6 feet 3 inch is one inch better than the Intercollegiate record held by George Bonder of Penn State.

[illegible] Captain Bob Maxwell of Princeton, and Jack Kelley, third man in the hopping around line. Later on he may be able to shift [illegible] around, but according to his self-[illegible] he has been getting very satisfactory results. The Brooklyn youth, it will be remembered, handles himself pretty well at the initial pillow, while the Lynn flash, Wm. Friberg, scooped up a couple like a regular hot corner shark.

Young Gardner, who has blazed his way to a regular job at second, showed the chilly gathering that he could hit the ball, getting three for his share of the P. M.

Business

The Checker Taxicab Company was organized November 1922 with a fleet of 10 cabs (now 50) and 60 drivers.

From the earliest beginnings of the taxicab industry it was evident that there was a demand for a particular service not supplied by the ordinary type of cab, namely, a cab of a distinctive design and at the rates (the same as those charged by the Checker Taxicab Company) and which would be operated by cabmen of the highest character and intelligence. While the Company has only been in operation for a few months, it has however been able to keep abreast of the demand for its service.

Earnings

During the period of the organization of the business has been devoted principally to building up a reputation and developing a clientele. The Company expects to be able to earn [illegible] on the investment before the end of the year.

The average net earnings per cab in operation for the months has been at the average annual rate of $3,000 per cab, and the total paid in capital of $20,000 shows a book value in excess of $200,000 and total assets of approximately $350,000.

There is no risk from bad accounts, as the company's business is all cash.

As evidence of potential growth in earnings, it is estimated a fleet of 500 Checker Cabs can be operated in Boston effectively.

Investment Features

The above offering is an attractive one in which to secure remarkable results and will afford a ready means of the company and its present outstanding evidence of ability and stability.

Current profits are even greater than the revenue shown over previous 12 months, due to fundamental improvements in earning capacity as well as excellent business condition.

It is to be expected, therefore that as there is greater realization of the values and potentialities of the Checker Taxi Company, its common stock should show substantial appreciation to a level that would make investment in the shares at present prices most attractive.

Conclusion

We have made an exhaustive investigation into and find that the stock of the Checker Taxi Company represents the conservative capitalization of an exceptionally well organized and financially and fundamentally sound enterprise. We sincerely believe that an investment in this corporation constitutes a rare and exceptional opportunity, and we recommend the purchase of this stock and predict that it will show in the near future returns to the investor.

We offer, as Fiscal Agents of the Checker Taxi Company, the unsold balance of this issue, subject to prior sale, and for immediate allotment, as par, $10 PER SHARE.

THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Stealing away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frigh ened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend.

"Your servants are well trained," said Andrea

CHAPTER V.

ANDREA stopped several paces away and gazed at him. Her eyes filled suddenly with tears and her heart swelled in the quick answer of the generous to the thoughtful. She drew near and said in a voice that trembled slightly, "You are considerate in all—little things."*

She raised both hands to her throat, unhooked her cloak and let it slip from her shoulders. Bathtub rescued it before it reached the ground but she was unconscious of that—she was watching the man standing before her, just beyond the small table. For an instant his eyes were those of a man of her own world. They swept over her as though they took the measure of her loveliness for the first time. They traveled with a flashing gaze from her soft hair to her flushed cheeks, down over her bare neck and into the faery meshes of her filmy frock and there they stopped with a jerk as though even in that moment, he remembered that very short skirts had a truncated silk stocking might leave a serious gap in the all too frail defenses of modern modesty.

Then they came back in one swift, upward sweep and met her own gazze, squarely, steadily. She drew a deep breath. Something sustaining had come into the white man's gray-blue eyes, something you could lean upon. He was suddenly not of her old world.

The dinner was good beyond the cachet of mere gross appetite and it was served with a rapidity and smoothness that would have done credit to the oldest of the Pellor butlers.

"Your servants are well trained," said Andrea, breaking a long silence from a sense of social duty.

"Easy has a little to do," said the man. "He must do it well." He raised his eyes from his plate and added as though he made an effort to meet her advance half-way. "That, incidentally, is the secret of getting satisfactory work out of an African."

"Is it?" said Andrea absently, "I've always been told you were a shiftless lot and that a white man could do the work of ten niggers."

"So he can, ordinarily," answered the man, almost as absently, "but there are times when ten 'boys,' ten picked 'boys'—" He stopped as if he were lost in some far reminiscence, then his mind took a sharp turn back. "By the way, we don't say 'niggers' in Africa. We call them just 'boys' whatever their age."

"I know,' said Andrea. "I'm sorry."

A silence fell to the end of the meal which coincided with the sudden end of the tropic day. The sun, softened to a benign, rayless disk of yellow cheese, took one long, slanting look at them and dropped from view with almost comic precipitance.

The man spoke to the servants for the first time. They cleared the table, set it again with glasses and liqueurs, cigars, cigarettes and coffee, and moved it slightly to one side. Then, from the nearby hut, they brought out two cushioned wicker chairs, home-made but comfortable. Andrea sank into hers with a peculiar feeling of well-being mixed with suspense. The man sat down opposite her, the table within easy reach of both but not between them. Something swayed with a jerk above their heads. Andrea, startled, looked up just in time to see an enormous white disk unroll from its edges, letting fall in a circle around them a snowy mesh of bobbinet.

They, and all they needed for comfort, became enclosed in an insect-proof cage that swayed softly to the evening stir of air. The servants weighted down its edges with flat stones and then lit two acetylene lamps that stood outside on stands placed at right angles to the couple within the net so that the eyes of both were spared the glare.

Poured Coffee

The man poured coffee and liqueurs, lit Andrea's cigarette, chose a cigar for himsel fand sat down. During the coffee they eyed each other in silence, taking each other's measure. "It is too bad," he said finally, "that we can't take this hour for itself alone and drink together a cup of peace and stillness and comfort."

His words were half a question and it was so that Andrea understood them. She laid aside her liqueur glass and deliberately looked at everything except the male source of her trouble. A hazy round moon was just climbing into the sky, red in the face, like an angry dame in pursuit of a fleeing lord, bent on a night out. Its light, together with that of the lamps and of the fires which gleamed with an almost garnet glow before each hut, made of the whole crual a shadow picture such as, once seen, lives in the eye forever.

She drew a deep sigh, shrugged her bare shoulders and turned squarely to her companion. "It is too bad," she said, repeating his words with bitter emphasis, "that we can't forget that on this night I lose everything that matters—too bad I can't brush catastrophe and ruin aside for the sake of a fool moon and a cigarette."

As she spoke, the man braced himself. "Everything that matterns," he repeated. "Ruin! What have you lost that matters? Wherein have you been ruined?"

The girl stared at him, open-eyed. "You are not joking," she stated. "You know who I am, what I stand for in my world and how that world will make a chasm that I can never recross after this night and you can sit there and say it doesn't matter and ask where's the ruin?"

The man looked away from her tense face. "The things that matter," he said quietly, "are health—first of body and then of soul—honor that can stand alone, and the flame of an inner lamp. There is nothing else that really counts and you've lost none of these. As for ruin—" He turned his eyes back to her and in them was a gleam of quizzical challenge. "Shall I define ruin for you?"

"Please do," said Andrea, unsmiling.

Ruin Is Burial

"Ruin,' said the man, "is burial. Whether it's Pompeii or an entire civilization lying under strata of a ten thousand years' stride of time—or an individual rotting under the sod of conventions, it's all one and the same thing. Routine is a tomb and when you get so deep in its foul air that you can't keep burning the flame of that inner lamp I mentioned, why you're dead to every intent and every purpose. That, Andrea Pellor, is ruin."

He used her name without prefix but without familiarity; simply as a corollary to his stark frankness. She realized this almost subconsciously. Her thoughts lingered on the substance of what he had said but when she spoke she proved herself a woman. "Speaking of names, what is yours?" she asked.

"Mine? My name?" said the man, startled out of his role. He stared absently through and beyond her. "Why, I haven't anynow. Not that amounts to anything." His eyes came back to her. "Call me Mr. White Man as you have begun—Just White Man when you feel genial, if you ever do."

"Well, Mr. White Man," said Andrea, with emphasis, "what you said about ruin didn't pass quite over my head. I believe you spoke with genuine sincerity and that, as you doubtless remember, is conversational bad taste. Somehow it didn't bore me, but do you really think that women are persuaded by words?"

Dropped His Eyes

The man dropped his eyes. "No," he said listlessly. "I don't. I know but I had forgotten that women are persuaded by love alone."

"What!" cried Andrea.

"Women," said the man, "know no conversion except through love."

"I have no interest whatever in your abstractions," said Andrea angrily. "I don't care what you think on any subject under the sun. What have generalities got to do with me tonight? At this moment there is only one thing that concerns me—only one." She turned from him, threw her bare arms across the table and dropped her face against them. "What is to become of me? What do I care about women? I care about myself, about Andrea Pellor."

"I am glad that you do," said the man, and added grimly, "If you cry, if you even start to cry, I shall go to bed."

Andrea threw back her head and turned her face toward him. "I am not crying," she said quietly, and I will not."

WHEN LOVE GROWS

'AND WHEN IT IS BOUND TO WITHER

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls

ALL of us crave romance. All of us long for adventure. And many moderns think that romance must be built on a sense of adventure, on newness and change. But the romance which lasts must have love as its foundation.

In addition to the romance for which we humans long to keep our days from being hum-drum affairs of routine—we need companionship, understanding, devotion and the protection love affords.

Is there any way to obtain all these soul necessities? And above all can we find them in one person and live with that person according to the fairy-tale formula, "and so they were married and lived happily ever after"?

Why not?

Marriage is something more than the thrill of wild moments. It is something more than emotional fulfilment.

Romance may be only a dramatic gesture—but marriage is the drama of life itself.

If marriage is to last and to include the romance we all crave, it must have a sturdy foundation. No house of love can be built on the sands of passion without eventually yielding to the tides of curiosity, or satiety or restlessness.

Many a man or woman goes seeking romantic adventure outside of marriage on the theory that marriage precludes romance. But this is only as effective as we permit it to be—and it may be proved utterly false if we let truth prevail.

You can make a tremendous romantic adventure of learning to know the soul and spirit of the man or woman you love. Don't think for a moment that because the first thrill of his touch is gone you are facing boredom and weariness. Don't fancy that since you lack the excitement of winning your bride you are chained to a dull routine of sameness.

Marriage does become a drab and tiring thing unless it has the force of love to galvanize it to life. Marriage becomes a galling chain if it lacks the freedom that every human being has a right to expect and demand.

Nothing can be more dull and sapping than to give an account of your every thought to someone who insists that he or she has a right to your soul because you have exchanged vows at the altar. Love has to be won and rewon every day. Vowing should go on all through life. Men and women grow tired of each other because they stupidly take it for granted that they have exhausted each other's possibilities.

Failure is a dull and dismal thing. And to fail in marriage means selfish, stupid blundering.

Given freedom of soul, understanding of mind, and harmony of spirit, love can thrive and grow more beautiful every day. But suspicion, whimpering, enforced demands, selfishness, bitterness and temper are bound to kill everything lovely in the heart of the person whose marriage vows become a dragging chain when the marriage partner demands love—instead of giving it—and so winning it.

FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

THE hall must be formally and stiffly furnished, with only the necessary pieces of furniture, to the decree of good taste.

However, these pieces of furniture, though few in number, may be as elaborate as the remainder of the house can balance, with no infringement on good taste.

Carved Console and Mirror.

The hall arrangement pictured is a gilt console table, elaborately carved, and two straight chairs of the Adam period, with gilt frames and rose velour upholstering. The long mirror, which completes the ensemble, has a carved gilt frame.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

White and light felt hats can be nicely cleaned by rubbing with hot soda and water or ammonia, using an old tooth brush. Then cover the hat with a paste made of equal parts of pipeclay and precipitated chalk mixed to a paste with water. Allow all this to remain until perfectly dry, then brush off. Finally give an all-over rubbing with dry pipe-clay and a bit of white felt or flannel, afterwards shaking off the superfluous clay.

* * *

Furs suffer very much from fogs and dust, and regular cleaning improves not only the appearance, but does away with the possibility of dirt rubbing off on the wearer's other clothes, and also on to her neck. The fur to be cleaned should be laid flat upon a table, and a quantity of bran made very hot in the oven. Take this and rub in, afterwards brushing out, with vigorous strokes of a hard bristle brush. Fig dust, or a mixture of flour and sand, may be used in exactly the same way if preferred.

* * *

Before putting the knives away rub the blades with whitiron fat or vaseline and roll them in brown paper. This will prevent them from rusting.

* * *

Apple water can be made by peeling and slicing two large apples and placing them in a double saucepan with a lemon juice and sugar to taste. A quart of boiling water can be poured over, and this whole kept warm till the apples are soft, and then strained.

* * *

Plated teapots often become musty owing to the fact that it is difficult to dry them thoroughly. This may be prevented by drying the inside with a cloth and then before closing the lid putting in a lump of sugar. The sugar will absorb the moisture and the pot will remain sweet and wholesome.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

WHY A BAD BABOON WASN'T PUNISHED

WELL, I don't know whether monkeys were our ancestors or not, but when you see some of the members of the monkey family and how they live it certainly starts you thinking.

Baboons are an interesting branch of the monkey family, and sometimes they act just like human beings.

When Bobby, Bunny and I were in Africa we made such friends with a great big baboon that he came to live with us, and we enjoyed him very much—when he was good.

One day I went into the kitchen and found the cook in a terrible temper. She said indignantly:

"There is nothing in the house for lunch. That good-for-nothing Jocko got into the basket I brought from market and has taken away all my provisions."

I was very much put out and seized by riding whip as I rushed out of the kitchen door, shouting:

There Jack with all the paper bags torn open. Sugar and flour were scattered all over the ground. In his great hairy arms he was holding a loaf of bread, half of which he had eaten.

Bunny had spoken to him several times about stealing things, but stealing seems to be one trait which a monkey never loses. I rushed at him with my riding raised to Intended giving him a good, sound thrashing. As much I loved him, I simply had to discipline him.

Just as I reached him, Bunny came hopping along and what do you think Jocko did?

He grabbed Bunny in his arms and stood there with the most pitiful expression in his eyes.

He knew very well I wouldn't strike him while he was holding my dear little Bunny. I had a hard time to keep from laughing when I saw how cleverly he knew how to protect himself. So, I shouted:

"Put Bunny down, you rascal.

Put him down this minute.'

But Jocko just stood there with Bunny out in his arms like a baby.

What could I do?

I dropped my riding whip, shook my head and started to laugh. Jocko was too much for me.

When he saw that I had thrown the whip to the ground, he put Bunny on the ground beside him and came up sheepishly and took my hand as if to ask me to forgive him, which I did. But I said to Bunny:

"Bunny, you've got to make this fellow understand that if he doesn't behave himself, he'll have to go back to the jungles and live with his own family."

I guess he did, because Jocko never stole any more food.

SYSTEM IN PANTRY

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

A Recognized Authority on All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

WHY do people—especialy brides—buy those atrocious "sets" to stand upon the kitchen or pantry shelf, in which to store such as oatmeal, coffee, oil and the like?

In the home of a bride recently, following an accident, I was asked to step into the immaculate little pantry and get some coffee. There was a dainty china container, well besprinkled with windmills, well painted across it in half-inch letters were the letters "COFFEE." I believed what it said. But—the vessel contained sugar, and so, concluding that since the coffee container contained sugar, that perhaps the sugar container contained coffee. I opened it, but to no avail. The oatmeal container, being of greater capacity than some of the others, was being used to hold COFFEE.

The OIL container only occupied valuable space since the oil on hand was very properly in the refrigerator to prevent its becoming rancid.

Far better plain glass containers. These are being shown in the shops in many sizes. Next to these are the screw-top glass preserving jars.

Tin-topped jelly glasses are ideal for materials kept in small quantities such as ginger, pepper, cayenne and so on.

But before any what type of container you adopt, do have it properly labelled. You will feel much more enthusiastic about preparing the family food if the proper supplies are in clean, sparkling, properly labelled containers.

CORRECT MANNERS

SHORT LESSONS IN ETIQUETTE

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wedding Customs

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In giving a reception following a wedding at which relatives and friends are invited, would it be necessary, out of respect, to invite the parents of the maid of honor and bridesmaids, or would the invitation to the church be sufficient?

Would it be advisable to make a gift to the person who is going to sing at the wedding inasmuch as she is not to receive any remuneration?

WEDDING "BELLE."

YOU would feel .I think, that your hospitality had been needlessly limited if you do not invite the parents of your attendants to the reception. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids at a wedding are usually so generous and co-operative in their point of view to the wedding that both feel quite delightfully that they are "part" of it and plan for it with that friendly attitude. Consequently they would feel that an invitation to the wedding reception would be natural. Also a reception is so inclusive that they would see no reason why they are not on the list. (2) Here is a splendid opportunity for the bride to reward "the gift of song." A bride receives so many lovely thoughts and expressions that she should be on the lookout for opportunities to give expression to her gratitude to those who contribute to the spirit of her marriage.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

The Ladies' Auxiliary of our lodge is giving a dance next month at which time the committee in charge will wear white.

Would it be good form as floor manager, for me to wear white flannels on this occasion?

H. J.

THE best form would be for you to wear a tuxedo.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to know whether it is proper for a girl to wear kid gloves of shoulder length to an informal affair. Neither she nor her escort is wearing evening dress.

A READER.

SHOULDER-LENGTH kid gloves are proper only for formal wear with evening dress.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly publish the correct way for an engaged girl to initial her linens?

A CONSTANT READER.

THE linen should be marked with the initials of the bride's maiden name.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming.

By Ann Lisle

"JIM!" I cried. "You aren't being fair. You're putting the wrong interpretation on things. You're putting me in a very uncomfortable position. I said you'd go. You must"—

"Must!" repeated Jim in a voice of ice and steel. "My dear Anne, you've made a few soirees when you thought I was giving you orders. So don't try to be such a darn new woman that you forget who's boss of this ranch, and tell me what I must and mustn't do."

I stared at Jim, with allen eyes. His words had cut deep. I could not bring myself to explain that the sentence he had interrupted would have gone on to say that he must at least give me a hearing before he refused to go in Hoadley's. I knew now that he would not go and that I could never ask him again.

Without saying a word I got up and left the room. In all our married life I've never before rushed away from Jim.

I didn't stop to consider how he'd take it. I only knew I had to get away.

Strained Relations

Jim and I had not actually quarreled over the Hoadleys, but the air wasn't clear. There was nothing tangible in the matter, and when the next morning Jim avoided any mention of our discussion, I hated to bring it up.

Still, on Saturday morning I ventured a bit of coaxing. He was adamant. So I had to telephone Max Hoadley and tell him a white lie that at least saved him from being badly hurt.

Mr. Rockhill drove Betty and Ralph and me out to the Hoadley country place. I turned out to be an astonishingly attractive house with large rooms furnished in a sombre yet beautiful fashion. There were fine rugs and beautiful tapestries, and rich dark furniture.

The bride looked very sweet and very tiny in it. There were flowers everywhere. She seemed to be one with the fragrant blossoms that softened the big severeness of the place.

I've never liked Howard Rockhill. The pompousness which made me compare Max Hoadley to a frog in the days when I didn't like him takes an even more annoying form in Mr. Rockhill. Somehow he generally manages to make newcomers around him seem insignificant.

Patronizing Uncle

He didn't shake the patronizing manner to his uncle at the dinner. But Max Hoadley is so proud of his immaculately groomed and socially correct nephew that he enjoys being put in his place by that magnificent young person. He seems to feel as if a visiting potentate were stooping gracious ly to him.

Betty was so quiet and drooping that young Rockhill actually bullied her a bit, too. He was quite in character where his new aunt was concerned, putting his arm about her condescendingly, and telling her that he'd "show her the way about" in society.

"Mercy, child! I don't want to be bothered with society," she replied innocently.

Young Rockhill stared in amazement.

"I'll get you in with the best," he said largely.

"I have the best," replied the little woman simply. "Your uncle and I have two lifetimes to live together. One's behind us, and we'll enjoy living it over just telling each other about it. The other's now. And living is wonderful."

"You are blessed," replied Howard Rockhill.

It was the first simple thing I'd ever heard him say. But it led me to feel that he was a human being after all and that I didn't mind being paired with him at dinner. And I had to sit chatting with him, for Ralph devoted himself to Betty, who turned to him almost helplessly. Max Hoadley couldn't take his eyes from his wife's face.

All through the wonderful dinner Betty acted like a sleep-walker. Perhaps seeing "Aunt May" in this rich setting vividly brought back to her all she lost. Betty's world could never have seemed more topsy-turvy than in the moment when she realized how lavishly life had dowered Susanna May and how much it had taken from her. I thought of the glorious Betty I'd first glimpsed on my honeymoon, and my heart ached for the drooping woman who has nothing now but her place in the business I've been able to build up.

Ralph Lacy knew only a little of this. But his fineness and chivalry responded instinctively to Betty's need. Not once during the evening did he leave her side. When she couldn't rise to meet a situation his quickness covered it. He stood by her as royally as he helped me in the days when Jim was gone and I didn't know how to fight Dick West and the impostor who claimed to be my father.

So perhaps his kindness made the pleasant evening a success even for Betty. When Aunt May strained Betty in her arms on leave-taking, I'm sure the tears in Betty's eyes were happy ones. But the last words our hostess managed to say to me in an undertone startled me:

Sit in Front

"Will you sit in front with me, Mrs. Harrison?" asked Mr. Rockhill as he handed Betty into the car. "I'm sure Lacy won't mind being with Mrs. Winston, and there's a little business I'd like to go into with you now that the social part of the evening is ended."

His voice annoyed me. But strangely enough it made Betty flush and smile in a pleased fashion. Mr. Rockhill plunged into a discussion of some new scrip he wanted space for in the papers at once. We were still deep in business when we were at Betty's. So Howard Rockhill suggested that we drive Ralph home first and then we finish our talk on the way up from Ralph's apartment.

"Anything I can do to help?" asked Ralph.

"Thanks, old chap—but this stuff goes in a rival paper," laughed Mr. Rockhill.

"I'm not so sure, anyhow, if I can be of any use. No? All right, then, go ahead without me. I'll see Mrs. Winston to the elevator, and walk home. I'd like to. Good night, folks."

Oh, That We Were Maying

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1923, by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

YOUTH that loves cries, "Oh, that WE TWO were Maying!" Life is fresh and sweet in their throats like the honey from a flowerbell; the sun for them is just risen; the lark in their hearts only just awake; their feet are the silver feet of the young hearts that mourn that they must touch earth at all in their flight; their eyes are hungry for treasures of the world—out under the sun, they glance from this to that—alert, seeking, wondering, loath to shut fast under soft lashes for the oblivion of soft, dark sleep; their hearts pump deeply, steadily, sending the red blood singing through restless body and brain; their muscles slip softly under the childish skin; ambition sits in their busy heads and worship of beauty in their bursting hearts.

Age in love cries, "Oh, that we two were lying here in this quiet 'God's acre' side by side!" Life is mellow and but a memory of a taste in their throats; the sun for them is low in the sky and soberly colored; the bird in their hearts has forgotten its warbling and murmurs and evening song that is but half spoken to the living world, a drowsy chanting of things that were and the soft dusk to come; their feet are the slow, weary feet of the stream that flows quietly as it comes to the sea, the wild youth in the hills, when it leaped rocky gorges and sought out the fearsomest trail to flash its way, forgotten hall, glad now to find gentle valleys and soft channels; their eyes are dazed and faded with the light from the treasures of the world—they are glad to turn to twilight and to move slowly, to let the world slip by and close in dreams.

Those who really love are glad even for Death, if it be together.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza,

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

ONCE upon a time a woman's tiny waist was considered the measures of her beauty, as far as her figure was concerned. In looking over photographs of the '60s and '90s, one marvels that women could have squeezed themselves into the tight confines of their eighteen or twenty-inch wasbands. Yet they did, and survived.

Today it is real cause for gratitude that the natural lines of the healthful body are considered the correct basis for fashionable costuming.

The waist of the modern woman usually measures from twenty-four to thirty inches, depending upon her height and size. But although its exact measurements are a secondary consideration, it is most important that the waist should be round and flexible.

Exercises for the back and abdomen, the hips and the line from the shoulder to the hip all have their beneficial effect upon the waist as well, helping to make it slim, round and supple.

You will enjoy the following exercise. It is especially adapted to round and slenderize your waist.

Stand erect, with your weight on the balls of your feet, your back and neck straight, your legs well apart, your arms extended straight at your sides.

Now twist your body at your waistline as far as possible to the left, then to the right. Do this without moving your arms, neck, head or legs, except as they inevitably are moved by the twisting at your waistline.

Repeat this movement ten times or more.

Stand straight with your heels together and your weight on the balls of your feet.

Holding your arms, legs and head motionless, shake your body vigorously. Do not keep this exercise up too long. But for a moment or two each morning it will be refreshing and will start up your circulation.

An important aid to a well-proportioned waist is to keep the back straight at all times when sitting, standing and lying down.

Do not depend for the straightness of your back and the slimness of your waist on any garment you may be wearing, but on your own strong, straight muscles which should support your body without conscious effort on your part.

And this brings us back once more to the subject of straightforward, fearless, serene thinking, without which exercise for the supple waist and the straight back and neck, will be of little avail.

For if you allow yourself to feel blue and depressed and lazy, your waist will "slump" despite your experience and you will be so busy pitying yourself that you will not even be able to exercise whole heartedly

How You Can Have "Naturally Curly" Hair

By Using Flain Liquid Silmerine

Follow the simple plan here suggested and you will be surprised beyond words to see not only the beautiful curl, but the soft fluffiness and lively lustre your hair will acquire. Merely apply to the hair, before doing it up, a little Liquid Silmerine, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose. The delightful wavy effect in evidence within three hours will suggest to any stranger that your hair is "naturally curly." The effect will last many days. Get a few ounces of Silmerine from your druggist and you will have a supply for months. This will leave no sticky or greasy trace and cannot harm hair or scalp in any way. The hair will be quite manageable, no matter what the style of coiffure.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Let tyrants fear!"

Said Queen Elizabeth of England (1553-1603) in an address to her troops who were awaiting the coming of the Spaniards in the Armada (1588).

"He was not of an age but for all time."

This tribute to Shakespeare from the pen of Ben Jonson (1573-1637) is often used of other great men.

"It is only the first step that counts!"

Madame du Deffand (1697-1780), French writer and wit, is said to have exclaimed after hearing an account of St. Denis walking with his head, which had just been cut off.

"Light gains make heavy purses."

Advice to Union Men

Don't Be Like the Little Colored Boy That Had 50 Cents

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Wages are high and this newspaper is GLAD OF IT. It is a good thing for the workers that get high wages. And it is a good thing, although THEY DON'T KNOW IT, for the more prosperous men that are compelled to PAY the good wages.

All that the prosperous men can get is what the big crowd has to spend. The more the big crowd has to spend, the more the others get.

For the tenth time we say to men that grudge good wages, "Go to China, where you can hire men for ten cents a day, and see how long it will take you to build up a fortune."

You can hire cheap LABOR, plenty of it, but that kind of labor can't buy what you have to sell, it can't pay rent, it can't dress its family decently, it can't buy phonographs, or hire doctors or dentists or go to the theatre. Better be satisfied with America and with American high wages. They are to good business prosperity and to the prosperous class what good water running through irrigation trenches is to thirsty land.

So much for the foolish prosperous ones that would like to keep wages down.

Now a word for working men, especially those in unions that begin to show an inclination to kill with strikes the industrial goose that is laying golden eggs of unusual size just now.

Workmen, "GO EASY" on the strike question.

Don't let the fact that you may have $80 or $800 saved up persuade you to go suddenly and recklessly into strikes of which you can't see the end.

Don't be like the little colored boy who was lying under a tree on the golf course. Other caddies were all busy. He was asked to carry a bag, only nine holes, for fifty cents, but refused the offer.

Yes, he knew how to caddy, he wasn't afraid of work. "Then why don't you carry this bag for fifty cents?"

His answer was, "Because I got fifty cents already."

Wages are good, building is needed, times are good, money is plentiful and those that want to build can get the money to build NOW. But if you have two or three months of strike discouragement and if the money market gets tight, which it may do at short notice, THIS PRESENT PERIOD OF HIGH WAGES, WITH PLENTY OF JOBS SEEKING THE WORKER, MAY COME SUDDENLY TO AN END.

That may happen anyhow, at any time. But union labor shouldn't hurry it along.

Let the workmen consider how business men succeed. When times are good, they stick to it. They don't say, "I am doing so well I guess I will stop for awhile." They KEEP AT IT.

Workers, don't be like the little colored boy sleeping away the afternoon because he "already had fifty cents."

On the contrary, get all the fifty-cent pieces you can, work steadily, and above all, SAVE. If you MUST have strikes, if you MUST have a fight, get in shape to STAND the fight, when the thing is really forced upon you. And the way to do that is, SAVE MONEY NOW.

No, the Black Races Will Not Rule

You Need Not Worry About the "Nordic" Races

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

A learned gentleman wrote a profound article saying "The black races will dominate the world and the Nordic races lose power."

Mr. Theodore Pauky of No. 283 Clinton place, Brooklyn, N. Y., disturbed by this article, says: "Do you think it is a serious situation for the white race?"

No, at least not yet, not for 10,000 years.

No need for worrying about the Nordic races for a long time. They will go on ruling the world, at least in those places where they are the normal rulers, for many centuries to come, and probably as long as earth lasts.

The increase in numbers of the black races need not disturb white people. The only thing that ought to disturb the white people is the fact that they do not treat the black races with sufficient justice or kindness.

It is intelligence that rules, not numbers. What the black or yellow races may be ten thousand or a hundred thousand years from now we don't know.

But you may be quite certain that for the next ten thousand years the white races will be the ruling race on this earth—unforeseen and extremely improbable plagues not being taken into consideration.

The power represented in the facial angle, the straight up and down line of chin, nose and forehead in the educated white man, shows the development of a great many hundred thousand years. The power that rules the world is back of the white man's forehead, there the thinking is done. The power that drives those thoughts and conceptions into reality is located further back and lower down in the base of the brain. There the driving energy is concentrated.

The white men are foolish, in many ways; they murder each other, envy and rob each other in war and in the name of patriotism, instead of co-operating with each other.

But even so, they will continue as rulers for many a century, for the power IS IN THEM.

Their wars and their murders are not as bad as they used to be, when they had famine and plague to make them worse, when after victory they killed the men, made slaves of the women and children. They don't do that now, and as long as they don't kill off the WHITE WOMEN, they won't kill off the WHITE RACE.

LONDON, May 23.—Intended for the Soviet government's Nikolaiev Observatory, on the Black Sea, what will be one of the most wonderful telescopes in the world is now nearing completion at St. Albans, England.

The revolving turret, made of steel, will have an inside diameter of forty-five feet, and the thirty-two-inch reflecting telescope will be the largest in the world adapted to photography. The whole will be supported on a concrete pillar, the telescope alone weighing about nine tons, which will be adjusted and swung by electricity.

Poppy Day

Editor Boston American:

This year more than forty States will observe Poppy Day on Memorial day in accordance with the movement which the Veterans of Foreign Wars inaugurated and are sponsoring in this country to make the poppy the memorial emblem of tribute to the World War dead. Each V. F. W. poppy bears the label "Honor the dead by helping the living," and all the proceeds from their sale will be used for relief of disabled ex-service men. President Harding, in a letter to Colonel Tillinghast L. Huston, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has expressed his hearty accord with the Poppy Day plan.

Saving Sugar

Editor Boston American:

Quite apart from the present wholesome boycott on the sugar profiteers, we eat more sugar than we need. All foods have enough natural sugar for our bodies' needs.

A cereal meal furnishes sweets in abundance without sugar. If a spoiled taste or a growing child's needs require an added flavor, bananas, figs, dates or raisins furnish this, besides valuable vitamins. These fruits combine with milk or cream and make a satisfying meal.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Case of Real Need

Editor Helping Hand:

This is a case of real need, although it is not for clothes. A woman who is paralyzed and not able to go out for work, but wants to help a husband who, though working, has been ill for years, would like a typewriter to work with at home. She could give silver spoons in part exchange and would pay a small sum monthly for the typewriter.

Offers Boys' Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I would be glad to give some family with two boys about one and a half and three some suits and shoes. I live in Watertown and will deliver them by auto if not too far.

MRS. H. M. A.

We do not find any needy families with boys that age near Watertown in our files, but know there must be some. May we hold your kind offer for replies?

Acknowledges Gifts

Editor Helping Hand:

I have received your letter with the three dollars enclosed and thank you ever so much for all you are doing to help me out. I also received the five dollars last Saturday, but I was so happy that it really made me forget to write. Thank you for your kind work. I wrote to Mrs. L. P. H. and thanked her for her kindness, and I am also writing to Mrs. C. Y. H. and Mrs. G. I thank you ever so much for all you are doing. You sure did help me a lot. I did not have a penny nor a bite to eat in the house. Your readers have been so kind to me. They have done all they possibly could for me, and I really do not know how to repay them. I thank them all from the bottom of my heart, and I hope some day I shall be able to help as they do.

T. O. P.

It made us very happy, too, when offers of help for you came pouring in, even the very day your letter was published. I guess, though, in justice to all those who did the real help, that we don't deserve the thanks. The three-dollar check included a gift from an anonymous reader.

Aged Man Needs Books

Editor Helping Hand:

I am an old man in my seventieth year and am suffering from heart trouble and rheumatism. I am confined most of the time in my basement room. Is there any reader who could spare some magazines or books or maybe some simple instrument that would help to pass the long days away? I am very lonely, as I cannot mix with my neighbors.

Baby Carriage to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a baby carriage anyone can have if they will call for it. It is in fairly good condition, with reversible gear.

MRS. J. M. A.

Mrs. M. V., who has only one dark room to live in with her baby, and who has no carriage to take the little one out in, will be put in touch with you. Many thanks.

Ready for Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

Please accept my thanks for your good work in helping me through your column. I have nearly all I need for my newcomer except little gertrudes and diaper cloth, which I think I shall be able to procure. I do not know what I should have done without your aid and cannot thank you enough for it.

MRS. J. J. D.

We are mighty glad to know that the "newcomer" is not going to find the world cold and unfriendly, but guess we don't deserve the thanks so much as those who sent the clothes.

Black and Tan Dog

Editor Helping Hand:

Do you think some little boy or girl would like a nice black and tan dog—he is so kind to children? I would hate to give him to anyone who would abuse him. His name is Teddy.

MRS. N. M. M.

We have many requests for dogs. Your kind offer will be held for replies. Thank you.

More for T. O. P.

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me T. O. P.'s address. I have two blouses for a boy eight, two Winter union suits for a man five feet ten inches, size 42; two suits size 36 and 38 for some lady, and some old-fashioned clothing that would do to make over for small children. The material is very good.

MRS. J. B. D.

T. O. P.'s address will be sent you. The things you mention will be held for replies.

Invalid In Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I have been sick in bed now for two weeks with the doctor coming every day, and I have been in his care since last October. As a result I have nothing left to buy clothes after buying food and trying to square the doctor. I would greatly appreciate anything for girls seven and four and a boy fourteen, or a dress for myself, size 38.

MRS. A. B. 4.

Wash Suits for Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a few wash suits for a boy around two and a half or three years that I will gladly send to a mother of a child that age. I also have two pairs of shoes for a child age seven and a few shirts and bands for a baby of about one year.

MRS. J. J. M.

You will be sent the address of J. O. C., who is trying to give a boost to a family in great need, who could use the clothes you mention. Thank you.

Other Offers

The editor wishes to express his very sincere thanks to the following readers for their kind offers of assistance. They will be sent the addresses they request.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON ICEBERG HUNTING

By Garrett P. Serviss

The iceberg King is southward bound,
With his crown aglitter in the sun;
The trothless fog wraps him close around,
And the stout ship's course is done.

IF we had sentinel stations on the bleak north coast, says E. H. Smith, United States coast guard, it would be possible to give warning months in advance of the fateful sailing of iceberg fleets to beset the north Atlantic steamship routes. The coast guard vessels Seneca and Tampa keep watch and ward at sea, as best they can, but the icebergs have been long weeks on their way, stealing down behind the skirmish line of the field ice, and drawing near the striking point before they can be sighted.

A fixed station at Cape Dyer, Baffin Land, would enable observers not only to tell when great ice squadrons set sail in the Labrador current, but also occasionally to send the good news, which the conditions in some years would warrant, that there was little to fear for that season.

The Labrador current brings down the ice to the neighborhood of the banks of Newfoundland. Long in advance, Mr. Smith says, comes the field ice, arriving off Newfoundland as early as the beginning of January. It moves in a strip, or column, fifty miles or more in kith. But on the banks it encounters the relatively warm waters from the Gulf Stream, and rapidly melts. By the opening of April the field ice is all gone. But when the bergs arrive they sometimes last until July.

Behind the field ice, traveling with majestic slowness, come the mighty dreadnoughts of the main ice fleet—the great bergs, sometimes capped with glittering peaks that tower over 200 feet above the water, and with sides more than half a mile long. These are so profound in draft that once in a while one grounds on a shoal in the sea. At times they are hidden by enveloping fogs.

A few years ago, after the disaster of the Titanic, there was promise that means would soon be found to detect the neighborhood of dangerous icebergs by observations of the surface temperature of the water, or by a premonitory chill in the air. But this seems to have proved illusive. In a fog, or in darkness, such means of warning are unreliable. But it is believed that special developments of the sonic range-finders, which were invented during the war, and which depend for their action upon reflection of sound from nearby objects, will at last furnish the desired detector. With these instruments not only the distance, but the direction of sound-reflecting objects can be ascertained.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

STORY OF ANNE BOLEYN

By Mark Stuyvesant

SOME time near the beginning of the 16th century, a daughter was born to an English country gentleman. This little girl, before she was 20 years old, was Queen of England.

Though the nearest her birth brought her to royalty was the fact that her mother was the daughter of the Duke of Norfolk, this child was thoroughly educated, not only in England, but in France.

When she was about 15 she returned to England a beautiful, tall, slender girl, with great charm and fascinating manners.

It was at a fancy dress ball that the King, Henry VIII., first met Anne Boleyn—for that was her name. It it said that he immediately fell in love with her and did not rest until he had made her his Queen.

Although Anne was lady-in-waiting to the Queen, Katherine of Aragon, and lived at a court where morals were not considered seriously, she conducted herself in a most dignified and correct manner.

Here was a difficult position to hold—to be an intimate of the Queen and at the same time to be constantly thrown with the King who was greatly enamoured of her. But Anne would have none of Henry's attentions and repulsed his efforts to make love to her.

Henry realized that Anne would consent to be nothing less than a legal wife to him. So he looked for an excuse to rid himself of the Queen and used the fact that she had borne him no sons as a reason to divorce her.

Defying the Pope and divorcing Katherine, Henry soon married Anne Boleyn.

The poor girl was not popular at court, but Henry loved her and she loved him. They were happy.

When the first baby was born, and it was a girl, Henry's wrath and disappointment knew no bounds. His ardor toward the young Queen cooled immediately.

With the announcement of the expectation of another child, the King showed a moderate degree of interest in his Queen, but it waned when a boy baby was born—dead.

Now, not only was Henry through with Anne, but he was repeating the same attentions to Jane Seymour, Anne's lady-in-waiting, that he had shown to Anne when she was his first wife's attendant.

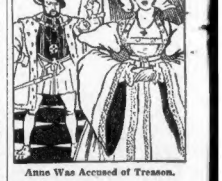
Although Anne in desperation and from wounded pride flirted with some of the courtiers, she maintained her position as wife and Queen loyally and with absolute virtue.

But Anne had many enemies, who saw that by showing the King that she was unfit to be his Queen, they would find favor with His Majesty.

This they did by accusing her falsely of an unbecoming intimacy with several young men at court. This was enough. Anne was accused of treason and was sent to the Tower.



Anne Was Accused of Treason.

Her trial was a farce. She was convicted of treason and sentenced to be executed.

Anne Boleyn had been Queen for three years. Before she died she said:

"The King has been very good to me. He promoted me from a simple maid to be a marchioness. Then he raised me to be Queen. Now he will raise me to be a martyr."

It is as a martyr that Anne Boleyn's name comes down in history.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

HOLLOW LOGS AS "RADIOS"

By Temple Manning

The American Indian had a very effective method of signalling from one hill-top to another by means of smoke. A bonfire was built, and the smoke confined by a blanket. The puffs of smoke made by lifting the blanket formed the code. This simple method was perfectly understood by the red men.

They had another system of primitive telegraphing. This was pounding on the ground. The receiving Indian lay flat on the ground with his ear pressed closely to the earth. They became expert in hearing signals given several miles away and the code of one tribe was not distinguishable to any other tribe.

Only lately a traveler returned from the interior of South America where civilization is at a low ebb, and told how there he found a natural radio which worked very well. And, he said, they actually have relay stations for long-distance work.

This radio, however, was feasible only where there was a river or a stream. Because it was done with the water as the conductor. But, as in radio, vibrations were transferred.

The method is very simple.

A hollow log is stood in the water and the message in code is hammered on the end of the log.

Vibrations are set up and travel through the water in all directions.

Several miles up the river is the receiving log. Here the other operator listens to another hollow log, set in the water like the one from which the message is sent. With his ear close to the log, he can hear the vibrations coming from the water, which have traveled several miles from the sender.
